ALLEN COUNTY PUBLIC LIBRARY

THE

Scottish Provident Institution.

INSTITUTED 1837. INCORPORATED 1848.

HEAD OFFICE: 6, ST. ANDREW SQUARE, EDINBURGH.

THIS SOCIETY combines the advantages of Mutual Assurance with Moderate Premiums.

THE PREMIUMS are so moderate that at usual ages for Assurance £1200 or £1250 may generally be secured from the first for the yearly payment which would elsewhere assure (with profits) £1000 only—the difference being equivalent to an immediate and certain Bonus of 20 to 25 per cent.

The WHOLE SURPLUS goes to the Policyholders, on a system at ice safe and equitable,—no share being given to those by whose early ath there is a loss to the common fund. On this Principle large iditions have been made to the policies of those who live to participate, ithstanding the lowness of the premiums.

Examples of Premium for £100 at Death—With Profits.

AGE.	25	30*	35	40†	45	50
During Life	£1 18 0	£2 1 6	£2 6 10	£2 14 9	£3 5 9	£4 1 7
21 Payments	2 12 6	2 15 4	3 0 2	3 7 5	3 17 6	4 12 1

The usual non-participating Rates of other Offices differ little from these Premiums.

* A person of 30 may secure £1000 at Death by a yearly payment, during life, of £20 : 15s.

[This premium would generally elsewhere secure (with profits) £800 only, instead of £1000.] he may secure £1000 by 21 payments of £27 : 13 : 4—being thus free from payment after age 50.

t age 40, the Premium ceasing at age 60 is for £1000 (with profits), £33 : 14 : 2,—being about t e s most Offices require during the whole of life. To Professional Men and others whose income dent on health the limited payment system is specially recommended.

SURPLUS at the last Investigation (1894), amounted to £1,423,018. han one half of the members who died during the last Sep- period were entitled to Bonuses which, notwithstanding that the s do not as a rule exceed the non-profit rates of other Offices, were verage equal to an Addition of about 50 per cent. to the hich participated. It will thus be seen that persons who effect assurances on the usual non-participating scales throw away the prospect of very considerable additions to their Policies without any compensating advantage.

ACCUMULATED FUNDS TEN MILLIONS STERLING.

ARRANGEMENTS as to SURRENDER, NON-FORFEITURE, LOANS on POLICIES, IMMEDIATE PAYMENT OF CLAIMS, FREE RESIDENCE, &c., are specially liberal.

Dec. 1896. JAMES GRAHAM WATSON, Manager.

PREFACE.

In making this attempt at the provision of a second popular annua he publishers feel confident that a work supplying—at so inconsiderable a st, and in that readiest of arrangements a single alphabet—all the most requ ite information in respect of every person of title, could not fail, if pro ly executed, to secure an adequate measure of success.

The event must prove how far this condition has been observed. he selection and re-selection of the material; the unenviable task of discrimi t- ing among rival claims; the insertion of particulars in one case which re rejected in another; the adjustment of frequently recurring discrepan es between authorities; and, perhaps not least, the settling of the form nd style, together with the growth and expansion of the design itself as he work proceeded, have formed some of the chief difficulties inseparable m the production of a first issue.

The efforts to ensure accuracy, and, within the announced limits, comp e- ness also, have been conscientious and unremitting. In many instances he publishers have been favoured with personal information, in respect of w ch they have to express their gratitude. They have, however, to acknowl ge their indebtedness to a number of the excellent works already in existenc as specified in a list at the foot of the following page. Among other author es consulted, mention may be notably made of the authorised lists emana ng from the various Government Offices.

For the lengthy Introduction, one of the principal sources is noted on he first page; for the unusually extended list of the Royal Family the de ils have been largely gathered from the 'Almanach de Gotha;' the Mari ge Alliances with Foreign Houses, and the Index to the Names, which it is h ed may be found particularly serviceable, being wholly original designs.

The year of the first issue of the DIRECTORY being coincident with he sixtieth anniversary of Her Majesty's accession, it has been deemed a spec ly fitting occasion for supplying the particulars which will be found under is division—the account of the Coronation, and the historical and descrip re notices of the Royal Family, the Peerage, and the various Order of Knighthood, being leading items to which attention may thus be called.

The work is not put forward as by any means perfect; many suggest ns for its improvement will doubtless be made, while others have alr y suggested themselves. The publishers do not only look for but will welc e criticism; tending, as it undoubtedly must, to render the DIRECTORY w TITLED PERSONS year by year more useful and complete.

INTRODUCTION.

THE SOVEREIGN.

THE ROYAL LINES.—As the course of succession of the English monarchs is clearly aced as to relationship, &c., in the Tables of Sovereigns presented in WHITAKER'S LMANACK, we need here only draw attention to those tables. After eighteen Octarchs Bretwaldas, exclusive of Egbert, the first fully recognised King of all England, ere followed for 239 years the Saxon and Danish Kings; then the Normans, and ccessively the Plantagenets, and the Houses of Lancaster, York, Tudor, Stuart, id the present one of Guelph, Hanover, or Brunswick. Of independent Welsh lers records will be found from the year 840 up till the conquest of the country Edward the First in 1282. The line of Scottish Kings is traced in the ALMANACK om a little before William the Conqueror down to 1603, when James the Sixth of otland became also James the First of England, though the two countries themlves remained distinct until 1707. Ireland, too, had her regal line, and one reaching en to a fabulous antiquity; some of the Kings are still the objects of national pride, t the record of them as a whole is such as to excuse a measure of incredulity as to e wholly disastrous tendency of the conquests of the island by Henry the Second, romwell, and William the Third. For three centuries from the Plantagenet times the nglish Kings were styled "Lords of Ireland;" Henry the Eighth was the first to bstitute the title of King; but this remained a separate clause in the royal list of nours until the Union of 1801 amalgamated it with the principal title under the term United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland."

King George the Third at his death left seven sons, of whom the first and third cceeded him as George and William the Fourth. Both of these, however, died ithout leaving issue, as had the second son, the Duke of York, already before them. he fourth son, the Duke of Kent, had also passed away (only six days before his ther), but he left, as his only offspring, the Princess Victoria, our present Queen, ho, by the law of succession, took precedence of the fifth son, to be presently noticed.

TITLES.—The words "Defender of the Faith" have been retained from the time of eir bestowal upon Henry the Eighth by the Pope, but "King of France" was very nsibly dropped by George the Third upon the Peace of Amiens in 1802. Up to the ath of William the Fourth our Hanoverian Sovereigns were also Kings of Hanover, t the Salic Law prevented her present Majesty from succeeding to that rule, so the th son of George the Third, the Duke of Cumberland, came to occupy that position, d thus eventually avoided for this country a possibly awkward complication. He led the throne for six years, and on his death in 1843 was succeeded in due course by s son, the second Duke; and the latter in 1870, at the fiat of Germany, relinquished s crown without involving England in his protest. From the time of Richard the First e English Sovereigns have habitually spoken of themselves in the plural number; some ve assigned a perhaps fanciful reason for this in the fact of their double capacity as ads of the State and also heads of the Church. The original full title of her present ajesty (which has been since somewhat materially altered) is thus given in a work blished immediately after her accession, and to which this Introduction is largely and peatedly indebted:* "Her Most Excellent Majesty Victoria, by the grace of God ieen of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland; Defender of the Faith;

* 'The Book of the Court,' by William J. Thoms, F.S.A. (London; H. G. Bohn, 1838; 2nd edit., 1844).

Sovereign of the Most Noble Order of the Garter; of the Most Ancient Order of th Thistle; of the Most Illustrious Order of St. Patrick; of the Most Honourable Order the Bath; and of the Most Distinguished Order of St. Michael and St. George, of th Ionian Islands and of the Island of Malta."

REGALIA.—The robes and insignia worn by her present Majesty on state occasion have been those of the Sovereign of the Order of the Garter—the diamond badge ar stars, the distinctive ribbon over the left shoulder, and an armlet with the motto of th Order—to which she has been wont to add a splendid head-circlet of diamonds. The mant of this rank is of blue velvet; but we are told that the Queen used to appear in Parli ment in red, and that at her coronation she went in crimson and was invested in purpl Among the jewels at the Tower there are shown, besides the lighter (unarched) ador ment called the Queen's Diadem, two crowns of royal use—St. Edward's Crown, and th one specially made for her present Majesty in 1838. This being the year of her coronatio it has naturally been assumed that the crown in question was made in preparation fo that event; but the official instructions of the Earl Marshal, which we presently quot inform us most explicitly that that ceremony was to be performed with St. Edward Crown. In the Introduction to 'Debrett's Peerage' there is presented a full an interesting description of the "Imperial State Crown" made for Her Majesty in th above year; but as this information is given in the form of a note appended to th "Heraldic Crown," with the figure of which nearly every item appears to agree, th conclusion naturally formed by the reader is that it is this Heraldic Crown which wa constructed at that date. But this is certainly not the fact, and this Heraldic Crow appears to be little more than a figment of heraldry, though its contour resembles that the miniature "Half-Crown" worn on semi-state occasions; it is used, by Her Majesty consent, in representations of the crown upon royal arms, coins, and so forth, som people fancying it to be more graceful than the St. Edward's Crown. This latter, hov ever, is clearly the one figured in 'Debrett' as the "Royal Crown," whilst that made fo her present Majesty and so carefully described in that excellent 'Peerage' is not figure there at all. The great features of distinction between the three may be thus stated The imaginary Heraldic Crown has its surmounting "arches" or diadems rising sharpl from their bases to the summit; the St. Edward's or "Royal" Crown has these bulgin at first outwards, and then brought back so as to form a nearly flat summit to the crow but with a slight depression where they intersect; while in Queen Victoria's Crown the rise almost perpendicularly to the bend, after which they continue to tend towards a sligh elevation at the summit. The term "an imperial crown" is often applied vaguely to an regal crown as distinguished from a coronet, but in this Introduction we shall use exclusively of St. Edward's Crown, which was so called from its general resemblance the one worn by Edward the Confessor. Charles the Second had one made on this patter which continued to be used by his successors as far as Anne; the Georges introduced larger one still, made on the same model, and this is the actual crown worn by Willia the Fourth and now preserved in the Tower. It has the minor distinction of having th upper rim of its principal circle entirely even, whilst that of Her Majesty's Crown wrought into festoons, to which the Heraldic Crown adheres; all three concur i possessing upon this rim four crosses-pattée alternating with four fleurs-de-lis—th former ornaments denoting the Sovereign's religious headship, and the latter being survival of his French dominion. Queen Victoria's Crown yet again observes the dive gent feature, borrowed from that of Henry the Eighth, of having its velvet cap of viol instead of crimson or purple as is usual: like other caps, it is lined with white silk an bordered or turned up with ermine. The crown itself is wholly of gold, but completel covered over in every part of its surface with a blaze of jewels. The four crosses-patt —frequently, but we believe incorrectly, called Maltese crosses *—are at the front, bac and on each side, the fleurs-de-lis being consequently at the diagonal positions. Th arches, which rise from behind the crosses, are decked with diamonds in the form wreaths, while four large pear-shaped pearls hang from their upper part. Above the intersecting point over the crown of the head is a miniature of the "orb" to be presentl described—the ball being completely overlaid with diamonds, whilst the cross has sapphire in its centre with numerous brilliants around. The entire crown contain nearly 2,800 diamonds (brilliant, rose, or table), 377 pearls, 17 sapphires, 11 emeralds, an 5 rubies, including one stated to have belonged to the Black Prince. Its weight is 3l 3¼oz. Troy—quite a sufficient load for a female head, and only too symbolical of th eight of cares which it entails; and yet we read that a crown worn in mid-English istory scaled up to something over 7lb.

Next among the insignia we may name the Orb or Mound (the French monde, equivalent "orb"), which is a somewhat ponderous emblem of sovereignty, consisting of a globe inches in diameter surmounted by a cross, which brings up the entire device to a height : 11 inches. The globular portion is of gold, and is engirt with a band set with iamonds, emeralds, rubies, and pearls; on its summit is a large amethyst, from which rings a golden cross bedecked with diamonds, pearls, a sapphire, and an emerald. ext in order we note three sceptres—the Sceptre with the Cross, or Royal Sceptre; St. dward's Staff (surmounted by an orb said to contain wood from the true Cross), and ie Sceptre with the Dove (there are two of these in the Tower as there are two Orbs—:plained by the double coronation of William and Mary): these are of gold, set with wels, and finished by a "mound," from which the dove, when there is one, appears to ring. The Sword of State claims the next notice, though in the case of our present overeign it was simply placed in her hands at her coronation; but Queen Anne had it :tually girded on. There are three other swords borne before the Sovereign at this remony, but, like St. Edward's Staff, not personal insignia: the Sword of Mercy alled, like King Arthur's weapons, by a proper name, "Curtana"), a rounded instru-ent; the Sword of Justice to the Spirituality, which is obtuse; and the Sword of ıstice to the Temporality, which is sharp-pointed. Next comes the Ring, which is of ain gold with a large ruby, on which is engraved the Cross of St. George. Finally me the Spurs, called the Great Golden Spurs (used at the coronation only), which are ithout rowels, but highly wrought, and are attached to embroidered velvet straps.

We may conclude this account of regal decorations with an amusing story told in homs's 'Book of the Court'—a story, in fact, just a little too amusing to find entire edence in these days of education, though vouched for as an actual occurrence. A country gentleman" was once taken to a London theatre on an occasion when George e Fourth was a spectator, and His Majesty was of course pointed out to our visitor's bservation. Reluctantly he gave in for a time to the persuasion that the portly figure as really that of a king, though distinguished by no crown and sceptre; but presently was fully convinced that a hoax was being played upon him, for the regal shoulders ost certainly bore the ordinary human pair of limbs, and had he not been taught from s veriest childhood that the "arms" of the king were the lion and the unicorn!

Accession of a New Sovereign.—From the time of Henry the Eighth it has been recognised constitutional principle that immediately upon the death of a monarch his ir becomes his already constituted successor. We may now follow up the course of currences upon the accession of her present Majesty. Upon the decease of William e Fourth, the Lords in attendance at that event proceeded forthwith, though it was t two o'clock in the morning, to apprise his royal successor of her new position, having en to require her to be aroused from sleep on account of the urgency of the business. meeting of the Privy Council was summoned in the morning at Kensington Palace, at ich orders were given for the proclamation of the new Queen, who had but just turned e age of eighteen, thus obviating the appointment of a Regent. Those present were en re-sworn as members of the newly-constituted Council. Several public announce-ents followed in the course of that day, the first signed by all the members of the yal Family, the two English Archbishops, the Privy Councillors in attendance, and e Lord Mayor, Aldermen, and other leading citizens of London—making known the lancholy event of his late Majesty's decease "at twelve minutes past two o'clock" of at morning, and pronouncing the succession to have come to "the High and Mighty incess Alexandrina Victoria, saving the right of any issue of his late Majesty King illiam the Fourth which may be born of his late Majesty's consort." The second per recorded the Queen's declaration on ascending the throne, and the third announced r prompt subscription to the oath relating to the Church of Scotland. The House of rds met in the morning at a quarter past ten, and again in the afternoon, for the rpose of taking the oaths of allegiance and supremacy; the Commons—which House not dissolved by the death of a Sovereign as commonly supposed—assembling at noon the like purpose. The formal public proclaiming of the Queen took place on the lowing day, the 21st of June, when Her Majesty, attired in mourning, and accom-nied by the Duchess of Kent and the great officers of state, appeared at a window of e Presence Chamber in St. James's Palace, and Sir William Woods, Clarenceux ng of Arms, with whom was the Duke of Norfolk as Earl Marshal of England, then d the proclamation re-announcing the demise of King William the Fourth, and the accession of "our only lawful and rightful liege lady Alexandrina Victoria the First" a Queen of Great Britain and Ireland: the word "Alexandrina" was subsequently omitte on the discovery that the Queen had signed her name at the Privy Council as "Victoria alone. A state procession of officials, with trumpeters, heralds, and Lifeguards, was the formed and started for the City, reiterating the reading of the announcement at Charin Cross, Temple Bar (where the Lord Mayor and City officers joined in), Wood Stree and the Royal Exchange.

CORONATION.—This ceremony, elaborate and solemn as it is, is after all only a form ratification of an event already of legal force. Moreover, it need not follow immediatel upon accession, and when, as in this case, there was an assumed possibility of the birt of a nearer heir, there was reason for an exceptionally long postponement. In this instanc it was no less than a year and eight days, whereas in the case of Queen Anne it was onl from the 2nd of March to the 23rd of April. While trusting that it may still be sever years before another ceremony of this kind has to be enacted, we may rely upon gratifyin many of our readers by here repeating somewhat at length the leading items in the la coronation, an event with which the present generation has happily been spared fro forming acquaintance. The information which we append is from the Earl Marshal "Instructions" previous to the event, these being preserved in full in the work to whic we have above acknowledged our obligations, and with them a still ampler record of th coronation of Queen Anne, from which we interpolate a few details of interest, thoug making omissions too frequent for notice from the "Instructions" themselves.

"The Peers and Peeresses in their robes of estate, and others summoned by H Majesty's command to witness the ceremony, will be conducted to the places assigne them in Westminster Abbey—the Lords Spiritual on the north side of the area, th Lords Temporal in the south transept, and the Peeresses in the north transept. Th great officers of state, the Archbishops of Canterbury and York, the noblemen appointe to carry the regalia, all in their robes of estate, and the Bishops who are to support H Majesty, will assemble in the Jerusalem Chamber before ten o'clock; where the regal will be delivered to the noblemen by whom they are to be borne, viz.:—

"1. St. Edward's Staff, to the Duke of Roxburghe.
"2. The Spurs, to the Lord Byron, deputy to the Baroness Grey de Ruthyn.
"3. The Sceptre with the Cross, to the Duke of Cleveland.
"4. The Pointed Sword of Temporal Justice, or Third Sword, to the Marque of Westminster.
"5. The Pointed Sword of Spiritual Justice, or Second Sword, to the Duke Sutherland.

Her Majesty will then resume her seat ; and the Bible, the Chalice, and the Patina will be placed upon the altar by the Bishops who had borne them, who will then retire to their eats. Two officers of the Wardrobe will then spread a rich cloth of gold and lay a ushion on the same for Her Majesty to kneel on, at the steps of the altar. The Archishop of Canterbury will then proceed to the altar, put on his cope, and stand at the north ide. The Bishops who are to read the Litany will also vest themselves in their copes.

"The Queen, attended by the two Bishops, her supporters, and the Dean of Westminster, the great officers and the noblemen bearing the regalia and the four swords, vill pass to the altar. Her Majesty, kneeling upon the cushion, will make her First Offering, of a pall or altar-cloth of gold, which will be delivered by an officer of the Wardrobe to the Lord Chamberlain, by him to the Lord Great Chamberlain, and by him o the Queen, who will deliver it to the Archbishop, by whom it will be placed on the altar. The Treasurer of the Household will then deliver an ingot of gold of one pound weight to he Lord Great Chamberlain, who will present it to the Queen, and Her Majesty will eliver it to the Archbishop, to be by him put in the oblation-basin. Her Majesty conuing to kneel, the prayer, 'O God who dwellest in the high and holy place,' will be said y the Archbishop. At the conclusion Her Majesty will arise, and go, attended as before, o the chair of state on the south side of the area.* The regalia, except the swords, will ien be delivered to the Archbishop, and by His Grace to the Dean of Westminster, to e laid on the altar ; the Bishop of Durham standing on the right hand of Her Majesty, ith the noblemen carrying the swords on his right hand ; the Bishop of Bath and Wells n Her Majesty's left hand, and near him the Lord Great Chamberlain. The Archbishop will then begin the ommunion Service, the Bishop of Rochester reading the Epistle, and the Bishop of arlisle the Gospel. The sermon will then be preached by the Bishop of London. [At nne's coronation the Archbishop of York was the preacher.] The Archbishop of anterbury will take his seat in a purple velvet chair on the north side of the area, the ean of Westminster standing on the south side near the altar.

"The sermon being concluded (and Her Majesty having on the 20th day of November, 37, in the presence of the two Houses of Parliament, made and signed the Declaration†),

* The Coronation Chair, a venerable oak structure said to have been made in the reign of Edward the First, who d brought from Scotland the sacred Inauguration Stone, and had it embedded beneath the seat of this chair. is famous stone is of a sandy granular formation, consisting principally of quartz but with an intermixture of spar, mica, and hornblende, and measures in inches, 26 × 16½ × 10½ ; it is called the Stone of Destiny, and ssesses a mythical origin. It is traced from Scotland to Ireland, thence to Spain (where a king of Scottish race l given it to his son, Simon Brek, whom he sent to Ireland with an army), and before even this it was said to ve come from Egypt—in fact, it was the identical stone used by Jacob for a pillow ! Another story represents it to ve been hauled up out of the sea in the form of an already-constructed chair by the sailors of Simon Brek himself.

† The "Declaration," which in Queen Anne's case was made at the coronation ceremony, is a repudiation of the trines of Rome : "I, Anne, . . . do solemnly and sincerely, in the presence of God, profess, testify, and declare t I do believe that in the sacrament of the Lord's Supper there is not any transubstantiation," &c. ; also, "That the Archbishop of Canterbury, advancing towards the Queen and standing before her will minister the questions prescribed by the service; which having been answered b Her Majesty, she will arise from her chair, and, attended by her supporters and the Lor Great Chamberlain, the Sword of State alone being borne before Her Majesty, will go t the altar, where, kneeling upon the cushion placed upon the steps, and laying her righ hand upon the Holy Gospels, tendered to Her Majesty by the Archbishop, will take th Coronation Oath,* kiss the book, and to a transcript of the oath set her sign-manual, th Lord Chamberlain of the Household holding a silver standish for that purpose. Th Queen will then return to her chair, when the hymn, 'Come, Holy Ghost, our soul inspire,' will be sung by the choir. The Archbishop will then read the prayer preparatory to the anointing, 'O Lord, Holy Father, who by anointing with oil didst of old mak and consecrate kings,' &c. The choir will sing the anthem, 'Zadok the priest an Nathan the prophet anointed Solomon King.' At the commencement of the anthem th Queen will arise from her chair and will be disrobed of her crimson robe by the Mistres of the Robes. The Queen will then proceed to and sit down in St. Edward's Chair covered with cloth of gold and with a faldstool before it, placed in front of the altar when Her Majesty will be anointed; four Knights of the Garter, viz., the Duke o Rutland, the Marquess of Anglesey, the Marquess of Exeter, and the Duke of Buccleuch holding over the Queen's head a rich cloth of gold; and, the anthem being concluded, th Dean of Westminster will take from the altar the Ampulla† containing the consecrate oil, and, pouring some into the Anointing Spoon,‡ the Archbishop will anoint He Majesty on the head and hands,§ in the form of a cross, pronouncing the words, 'Be thou anointed,' &c. The Queen then kneeling at her faldstool, the Archbishop will pronounc the prayer after the anointing; when Her Majesty, arising, will resume her seat in St Edward's Chair, and the Knights of the Garter will return to their seats.

"After this the Dean will take the Spurs from the altar and deliver them to the Lor Chamberlain, who, kneeling down, will present them to Her Majesty, who will return them to be laid upon the altar. The Viscount Melbourne, carrying the Sword of State will now deliver it to the Lord Chamberlain [to be deposited in the traverse in St Edward's Chapel], and in lieu thereof receive from him another sword in a scabbard o purple velvet, which His Lordship will deliver to the Archbishop, who will lay it on th altar [with another prayer]. The Archbishop will then take the sword from off the altar and, assisted by the Archbishops of York and Armagh, with the Bishops of London Winchester, and other Bishops, will deliver the sword into the Queen's right hand, saying 'Receive this kingly sword,' &c. The Queen, rising up,‖ will go to the altar, where He Majesty will offer the sword in the scabbard, and then return to St. Edward's Chair; th sword will then be redeemed for one hundred shillings by Viscount Melbourne, who wil receive it from the Dean and carry it through the remainder of the solemnity, having firs drawn it out of the scabbard and delivered the latter to an officer of the Wardrobe.

"The Queen then standing, Her Majesty will be invested by the Dean with th imperial mantle or Dalmatic Robe of cloth of gold, the Lord Great Chamberlain fastenin the clasps. The Queen then sitting down, the Archbishop, having received the Orb fro the Dean, will deliver it into the Queen's right hand, saying, 'Receive this imperial rob and orb [and the Lord your God endue you with knowledge and wisdom, with majest and with power from on high. The Lord clothe you with the robe of righteousness an with the garments of salvation; and when you see this orb, thus set under the cross remember that the whole world is subject to the power and empire of Christ our Lord, . .

the invocation or adoration of the Virgin Mary or any other saint, and the sacrifice of the Mass, as they are no nsed in the Church of Rome, are superstitious and idolatrous."

* This oath requires the Sovereign to govern according to the statutes and customs, to cause law and "justice i mercy" to be executed in "all your judgments," and "to the utmost of your power" to maintain the laws of Go the true profession of the gospel, and the Protestant Reformed Religion established by law; also preserving the due rights and privileges to the Bishops, clergy, and churches.

† Called also the Golden Eagle, it being a vessel in that form, the head made to screw off for reception of the oi which is poured out through the beak. There is a legend that this Eagle was presented by the Holy Virgin to S Thomas à Becket, who gave it in charge to a monk of Poictiers, who again secreted it—with other similar treasure and a written account of the vision—in a church at that place, whence they came into the hands of the Blac Prince, who deposited them in the Tower.

‡ This spoon is of pure gold with four pearls in the broadest part of the handle and finely chased in the bowl. I extreme thinness makes it appear to be very ancient.

§ Queen Anne was further anointed upon the breast, and it fell to the lot of the Dean of Westminster to follo the process by wiping "with fine linen or fine Lombart wool." A king was formerly anointed on the head, th bowings of the arms, on both shoulders, between these, on the breast, and on the hands. The oil for the ceremony still consecrated, as stated in the words of the text, but evidently beforehand.

‖ Queen Anne had at this stage the sword girded about her. The Archbishop uttered an admonition on he sitting down with it, and she then rose a second time, ungirded it, and laid it on the altar, whereupon "the chi Peer, or he to whom Her Majesty shall vouchsafe that honour, offereth the price of it (scilicet 100 shillings), a having thus redeemed it receiveth it from the altar by the Dean of Westminster, draweth it out of the scabbar and carrieth it naked before Her Majesty during the rest of the solemnity."

a whose vesture and on whose thigh a name is written, King of kings and Lord of rds].' Her Majesty will then return the Orb to the Dean, who will lay it on the altar. he Lord Chamberlain will then deliver the Ruby Ring* to the Archbishop, who will ut it on the fourth finger of the Queen's right hand, saying, 'Receive this ring, the sign of kingly dignity and of defence of the Catholic faith,' &c. The Dean will then ring from the altar the two sceptres and deliver them to the Archbishop. In the meanme the Duke of Norfolk, as Lord of the Manor of Worksop,† will, kneeling, present to Her Majesty a glove for her right hand, embroidered with the arms of Howard, which Her Majesty will put on. The Archbishop will then deliver the Sceptre with the Cross nto Her Majesty's right hand, saying, 'Receive the Royal Sceptre, the ensign of kingly power and justice;' and then the Sceptre with the Dove into her left hand, saying, Receive the Rod of Equity and Mercy,' &c.; and the Lord of the Manor of Worksop ill support Her Majesty's right arm and hold the sceptre as occasion may require.

"The Archbishop standing before the altar, and having St. Edward's Crown before im, will take the same into his hands and consecrate and bless it, with the prayer, 'O od, who crownest thy faithful servants with mercy,' &c. Then the Archbishop will ome from the altar, assisted by the Archbishops of York and Armagh, with the Bishops London, Winchester, and other Bishops, the Dean of Westminster carrying the crown; nd the Archbishop will take and place it on Her Majesty's head; when the people, with oud and repeated shouts, will cry, 'God save the Queen;' and immediately the Peers nd Peeresses present will put on their coronets, the Bishops their caps, and the Kings f Arms their crowns: the trumpets sounding, the drums beating, and the Tower and ark guns firing by signal. The acclamation ceasing, the Archbishop will pronounce the xhortation, 'Be strong and of good courage,' &c. The choir will then sing the anthem, The Queen shall rejoice in thy strength, O Lord.' [Then follow the presentation of the ible, the Benediction, and the Te Deum, at the commencement of which the Queen eturns to the Recognition Chair.] Te Deum being ended, the Queen will then ascend ne theatre, and be lifted into her throne by the Archbishops, Bishops, and Peers around Her Majesty; and, being so enthroned, all the great officers of state, the noblemen bearng the swords and other regalia, will stand about the steps of the throne, when the Archishop will pronounce the exhortation, 'Stand firm and hold fast from henceforth the eat and state of royal and imperial dignity,' &c.

"The exhortation being ended, Her Majesty will deliver the Sceptre with the Cross to he Lord of the Manor of Worksop, to hold the same on her right hand, and the Sceptre ith the Dove to the Duke of Richmond, to hold the same on her left hand, during the Homage. The Archbishop will then kneel before the Queen, and, for himself and the ther Lords Spiritual, will pronounce the words of homage, they kneeling round him and aying after him. The Archbishop will then kiss Her Majesty's hand, and the rest of he Lords Spiritual will do the same, and retire. The Dukes of Sussex and Cambridge, ascending the throne and taking off their coronets, will kneel before the Queen; and the Duke of Sussex will pronounce the words of homage, the Duke of Cambridge saying after him. Their Royal Highnesses will then severally touch the crown upon Her Majesty's head and kiss Her Majesty's left cheek, and then retire. [The Dukes, then the Marquesses, and so on successively, will go through a like ceremony, the senior of each degree pronouncing the homage, then each touching the crown and kissing the hand. Queen Anne was kissed by all alike upon the cheek.] The choir will sing the anthem, This is the day which the Lord hath made,' &c.; and the Treasurer of Her Majesty's Household will throw about the medals of the coronation."

Two Bishops now proceed with the Patina and Chalice into St. Edward's Chapel, and return bearing the bread and wine; the Queen hands her crown to the Lord Great Chamberlain, and the two sceptres to the Dukes who have borne them, and proceeds to kneel again at the altar, where she makes her Second Offering (a purse of gold), and then repairs to the Coronation Chair, where she kneels on the faldstool till herself and the ecclesiastics have communicated (the Archbishop tendering the bread and the Dean the wine); she then returns to her throne and with her own hands resumes her crown, the

* Styled by some "the wedding ring of England." There is a legend attached to this ornament also. King Edward the Confessor is related to have been once asked alms of by a certain "fayre old man," to whom, having nothing else at hand to bestow, he gave this ring. Soon after this two English pilgrims happened to lose their way in the Holy Land, where "there came to them a fayre ancient man, wyth whyte heer for age." Having learnt their mishap and who they were, he "comforted theym goodly, and . . . brought theym in the ryghte waye agayne . . . And whan he shold depart fro theym, thenne he tolde theym what he was, and sayd, 'I am Johan the Evangelyst, and saye ye vnto Edward your kyng, that I grete him well by the token that he gaff to me thys rynge with his own handes, whych rynge ye shalle delyver to hym agayne;' and whan he had delyvered to theym the rynge, he departed fro theym sodenly."—Goldene Leyende, p. 187.

sceptres also being returned to her and supported as before. The choir sings, "Hallelujah for the Lord God Omnipotent reigneth;" after which follow the final prayers and blessing. The regalia are then returned to their respective bearers, the Queen's "Royal Imperial Mantle" is exchanged for her "Royal Robe of Purple Velvet," and, with the Crown on her head, the Sceptre with the Cross in her right hand, and the Orb in her left, Her Majesty, with the re-formed procession, in which the Princes, Princesses, and Peers wear their coronets, and the ecclesiastics their square caps, passes from the choir to the west door of the Abbey, whence the Royal Family and Household return in state to Buckingham Palace.

In the lengthy account of Queen Anne's coronation contained in a "Formulary" preserved in the British Museum, we have details of the proceedings in Westminster Hall after the ceremonies in the Abbey had terminated. The Queen ascended the throne in the Hall, before which a table was spread for a banquet. At the end of the first course the Hall was temporarily cleared, and the Queen's Champion,* "on a goodly white horse," and fully armed, attended by the Earl Marshal and the Lord High Constable who were also on horseback and in robes and coronets, and with trumpeters, sergeants at-mace, esquires, heralds, and pages, rode into the Hall, the trumpets sounded thrice and the herald proclaimed at the entrance the Champion's challenge: "If any person of what degree soever, high or low, shall deny or gainsay our sovereign lady Queen Anne," &c., &c. Then the Champion threw down his gauntlet, which lay for a short time, when the herald took it up and returned it to him. This proceeding was twice repeated—in the middle of the Hall and at the steps of the throne—when the Champion on finally receiving his gauntlet back, put it on and made a low obeisance to the Queen. Her Majesty thereupon drank to him out of a gold cup, then sent the cup to him filled when he drank out of it, and, with another obeisance, carried it off as his fee, returning from the Hall as he came. The second course was then brought in, after which the Queen departed privately to her palace. There was no banquet or procession in the Hall at the coronation of her present Majesty.

THE ROYAL FAMILY (AS REGARDED CONSTITUTIONALLY).

The Consort of a Reigning Queen.—The Constitution has never attached any special privileges to this personage, of whom we have had only three examples in our history. Philip of Spain, though designated King-Consort, and though the statutes were enacted under the joint names of "Philip and Mary," was, to his deep disgust, most rigidly excluded from anything more than a nominal dignity. The late lamented Prince Consort, again, received that title by individual creation, as he had received that of "Royal Highness." His rank as a Prince came with him, of course, from Saxe-Cobnrg.

The Queen-Consort.—When a married King occupies the throne, his consort, unlike the above, holds a specially privileged position, having her own officers distinct from the King's and being in a legal point a single rather than a married woman. She has her personal revenue from reserved portions of the rents due to the Crown, as well as from a variety of perquisites. She is crowned on the same occasion with the King himself, or by special ceremony after her marriage; but in either case the act proceeds as performed at his injunction and not by the will of the people. The Queen-Consort's Crown is one of the regalia to be seen at the Tower, where it is also known as "the Ancient Queen's Crown." In its general construction it resembles St. Edward's Crown.

The Queen Dowager.—This royal lady remains in most respects in the same position as when she was Queen-Consort, but it is no longer high treason, as it then was, to conspire her death. No man can marry her without permission from the reigning Sovereign, but she does not forfeit her royalty by marriage with a subject.

The Heir to the Throne.—We need only note under this heading, which is preliminary to the next, that, as with the heir to other dignities, he or she is styled "the Heir Apparent" if a son or daughter, grandson or granddaughter, of the Sovereign, but if any other relative, "the Heir Presumptive." In either case such personage, though still nly a subject, is next in the realm to the Sovereign, at whose right hand he sits in ssemblies of state, while to conspire his death or that of his consort is high treason.

* The office of King's Champion is stated by Sir W. Dugdale to have been founded by William the Conqueror, who bestowed it upon Baron de Marmion, in whose family it remained till, by the extinction of the direct line, it passed to that of Sir John Dymoke, by one of whose descendants, Frank Scaman Dymoke, Esq., it is held at the present day.

THE PRINCE OF WALES.—The usual Heir Apparent to the Throne, the eldest son of he Sovereign, bears this title, but by individual investment and not by birth. He is orn Duke of Cornwall in the Peerage of England; Duke of Rothsay, Earl of Carrick, Baron of Renfrew, Lord of the Isles, and Prince and Great Steward or Seneschal of cotland; Earl of Dublin in the Peerage of the United Kingdom; and Knight of the Garter; whilst at the Sovereign's pleasure he is created by patent Prince of Wales and Earl of Chester, the patent testifying that he is confirmed in the same by the "ensigns f honour, the girding on of a sword, the delivering of a cap and placing it on his head, ith a ring on his finger and a golden staff in his hand, according to custom," all at the ands of his royal parents; the additional titles of Duke of Saxony and Prince of Saxe-oburg and Gotha, borne alike by the present Prince and his royal brothers, are an heritance from their father which will not descend further except in the family of the eigning Duke, to whom the Prince of Wales soon after coming of age resigned the ccession. The Prince is a born member of the House of Lords, and minority in his se does not count, though, by the present Prince, the seat was not taken until full age was tained. It has been asserted that in the case of the decease of a King's eldest son, no cond son, though he becomes Heir Apparent, can bear the title of Prince of Wales; but will be safer to say with Sir Edward Coke, that he cannot become Duke of Cornwall. Parliament of Richard the Second limited the title of Earl of Chester in the same ay; but "that whole Parliament was repealed," says Selden, and we conclude that ith the earldom the principality may be allowed to shift. This title of Prince of Wales as originally borne by those native rulers of that territory who governed it as suzerains the English Crown; and the commonly received though not wholly undisputed story of ie transfer of this title to the heirs of the latter is that Edward the First, when expect-g the birth of a son, promised the Welsh to give them a Prince "free from any blemish on his honour and unable to speak a word of English;" and that he then sent at once for ueen Eleanor, whose child was duly born at Carnarvon Castle. The title thus prac-cally dates from the year 1284, and was at first actually intended to be hereditary, the ing's lands in Wales having in 1301 been formally settled upon the then Prince and his eirs; but upon that Prince succeeding to the throne as Edward the Second (his elder other Alphonso having died) the title became merged in the Crown, and from that day it as in every instance been made a distinction of personal investiture. The above string Scottish titles were conferred in 1469 upon the eldest son of the King of Scotland, and us they naturally passed with James the First to the Royal House of Great Britain: fact there was prefixed to them, on the union of the two Crowns, the still loftier title, Prince of Great Britain and Ireland," though this has never succeeded in supplanting e one that had come down from Plantagenet times. It must be observed that Carrick" is one of the Scottish titles though Irish in sound, and even "Earl of ublin" is a title of the United Kingdom; in fact, "Knight of St. Patrick" is the ince's only distinctively Irish honour.

The insignia of the Prince of Wales comprise in the first place the special feature known the Prince of Wales's Feathers, consisting of three ostrich plumes, customarily figured drooping, though it appears that in 1878 this form was abandoned for the older one in ich the feathers are strictly erect. At the base of these is an antique coronet, pendent m which is a scroll with the motto "Ich dien" (I serve)—both feathers and motto ving been taken by the Black Prince from the head of the King of Bohemia, who was in in the Battle of Crecy. The Prince of Wales has also his distinctive coronet, which embles St. Edward's Crown except that it possesses but a single arch (surmounted wever with the orb) and is of gold without jewellery. His Parliamentary mantle is orned with five bars of ermine, each bar having a gold lace above it; that worn at a onation is doubled below the elbow with ermine, spotted diamond-wise.

THE PRINCESS ROYAL.—The Sovereign's eldest daughter bears this title, and as she is arded as a possible successor to the throne, the law hedges her about with the same e as a Queen-Consort. But this privilege extends to no other Prince or Princess. r coronet is like that of her royal sisters as below.

REMAINDER OF THE ROYAL FAMILY.—Younger daughters enjoy no special precedence ond that naturally following from near relationship to the Sovereign; neither do nger sons until a dukedom is conferred upon them, when they enter the House of Lords as next in rank after the Prince of Wales. Their seats in that House are to th left of the Throne ; but when, upon the death of the Sovereign, they are converted fron sons into brothers, they are transferred to the first places in the ordinary ducal bench This latter position is also occupied by first cousins of a reigning sovereign ; but beyon that grade they lose all distinctive precedence and take rank among the other Duke according to the dates of their patents alone : this is at the present time the case with Hi Royal Highness the Duke of Cumberland and Teviotdale (whose title of "Royal High ness" is due to his father having been King of Hanover, for—as stated in the nex sentence—that father was the last who would have borne it in virtue of descent fron King George the Third). All sons and daughters, brothers and sisters, uncles and aunt of the Sovereign are regarded as of the "Blood Royal" and designated "Royal High ness," and the latter term is bestowed also upon grandsons and granddaughters if the are the offspring of sons ; but nephews, nieces, and cousins are Princes and Princesses o "the Blood," and, in common with grandchildren the offspring of daughters, are addresse as "Highness" only, though the husbands of those daughters usually receive by warran the title of "Royal Highness" for themselves. All subjects are commanded to b uncovered in the presence of any of the Sovereign's children, and to kneel when admitte to kiss their hands ; and again, when the Sovereign's self is absent, they are served a table on bended knee. The coronets of Princes of the Blood Royal differ from that o the Prince of Wales in the absence of the surmounting arch with its orb, the place o this latter being supplied, as with coronets generally, by a golden tassel to the cap Those of Princesses of the Blood Royal vary again from these in the presence of tw strawberry-leaves in place of two of the four crosses-pattée, whilst Princes and Princesse of "the Blood" have strawberry-leaves in place of all four of these, the alternating fou fleurs-de-lis being in all cases retained—from the Sovereign to the youngest Princess.

THE PEERAGE AND ITS DEGREES.

General Remarks.—The rules which govern the arrangements of the Peerage a marked by so many complications that even an expert may occasionally be perplexe All Peers of England are Peers of Parliament, and have been such from the creation their titles, except in those instances in which Parliament itself is the more modern. I Scotland and Ireland there are Peerages of equally long standing, and upon the succe sive Unions of these two Kingdoms a certain number of the Peers of each were grante Imperial titles and summoned to the House of Lords, the new titles being sometim totally different from the old and sometimes only variations in rank—as Earls in pla of Marquesses, or Barons for Earls—the old titles subsisting by the side of the new, a remaining, when of superior rank (which they are not invariably), the respective Peer ordinary, though not official, designations. No Peerage of Scotland or Ireland will ther fore of itself confer a right to a seat in the House of Lords, though, as just remarke very many of the Scottish and Irish Peers possess Imperial titles in addition, one or tw being Peers of all three kingdoms. The use of the term "Imperial" is convenient covering three variations entailed by the Acts of Union as above : All Peers of Parli ment prior to 1707 are classed as "Peers of England" and rank before all others of lik degree in the scale of precedency ; from that date down to the close of 1800 all fre creations either in England or Scotland were called "Peers of Great Britain ;" a creations from the 1st of January, 1801, onwards, are known as "Peers of the Unit Kingdom," save only that the Sovereign up till recently possessed power to create o new Peer of Ireland for every three Irish Peerages that had become extinct. O apparent exception to the exclusion of non-Imperial Peers from the House is exhibit in the case of the Elected Representative Peers of Scotland and Ireland, who take th seats by their native titles, but do not hold them as hereditary members—those of Irela as Life Peers, and those of Scotland for only a single Parliament unless re-elected. Imperial Peer can be elected a member of the House of Commons, neither can a Scotti Peer ; but an Irish Peer who has no Imperial title can be so elected anywhere out Ireland itself. Viscount Palmerston, so long member for Tiverton, was an emine example, whilst more recent ones have been afforded by Lords Fermoy, Kensingto Muncaster, and the Earl of Cavan, and we have one at present in Viscount Valentia.

Descent or succession of nobility commonly follows general rules, but there are var tions, for whilst in most cases it is limited to heirs male, in many Baronies (includi the whole of those older ones conferred by summons instead of patent), and in Scotla in the cases of some higher Peerages, it is open also to females. When this lat iccession prevails, it has the peculiar feature (but usually not in Scotland) of ignoring rimogeniture and regarding all the daughters as co-heirs, not one of whom can actually btain the title until she becomes the sole survivor, or else until the Sovereign relieves the ilemma by selecting one of the ladies as immediate recipient. This delay is what is nown as a title "falling into abeyance," for which subject see below in the third aragraph under "Barons." A somewhat similar exercise of the prerogative to that y which an abeyance is terminated is that other, noticed under the opening section of House of Lords," of summoning to that assembly the eldest son of a Peer during his ather's lifetime. On succession to different titles, see under "Breadalbane" in DIRECTORY.

Peers possess various privileges. If members of the House of Lords they cannot be rrested unless for an indictable offence; and whether belonging to that House or not, ney can, in charges of felony or treason, be tried only by that House, all the members which are then summoned to attend, when each one delivers his verdict with the form upon my honour," a decision being arrived at by the voice of the majority. The Lord teward sits as president of the court, and enquires the verdict of each Peer, beginning the lowest rank and proceeding regularly up to the highest. In cases of misdemeanour, owever, this elaborate form is not adopted, but the Peer is tried by a jury like other eople. Nor does the aforesaid privilege of trial pertain to Scottish or Irish Peers. A eer is not put upon his oath when sitting in judgment as above, nor yet in a Chancery uit; but if called as a witness, either in the High Court of Parliament or in an ordinary vil or criminal case, the oath is administered to him as to others. He can only be ound to keep the peace in the Court of Queen's Bench or that of Chancery. Peers are ot liable to serve on juries, and are entitled to sit covered in courts of justice. To the rish barony of Kingsale and to the English one of Forester there is, moreover, attached ie singular concession of right to remain covered in the presence of the Sovereign: in ie former case the favour was granted by King John in acknowledgment of the services Sir John de Courcy, the first Peer, who had acted as champion of England in a single ombat with the representative of France; in the latter it was conceded to John orester, Esq., a citizen of London, by Henry the Eighth. To assault a Peer (or even s servant in the case of a Peer of Parliament), or to spread a libel respecting him, is an fence treated with exceptional severity. And lastly, among the privileges of the noble rder—stated to have been availed of in the reign of Mary, and again by a certain ord Ferrers—if a Peer is sentenced to be hanged, he has the consolation of swinging y a silken cord.

The forfeiture of nobility can at present only take place through attainder or death, ough in the reign of Edward the Fourth a Duke of Bedford was deprived of his rank y an Act of Parliament. If an attainder is pronounced in a case of high treason, its rce is absolute and annuls the title for ever; but if only for felony, then if the title was anted by letters-patent and not by summons its effect expires with the death of the eer deprived. Similarly, if the heir to a peerage should be attainted, then in the case a writ of summons no descendant of his could ever succeed to the title, though a scendant through a collateral relative might revive the title if the direct heir's issue me to an end; but if the peerage were held by letters-patent the attainder would holly expire on the decease of the one attainted person. The event of bankruptcy cludes a Peer from voting in the House of Lords during the time that legal proceedings i its account are pending.

The arms of all Peers contain "supporters" (the pair of human, animal, or mythical gures on each side of the shield). Those of many Baronets are similarly distinguished, it of course without the central surmounting coronet, though here again some of them esent more or less close imitations of such.

DUKES.—This designation, or its Latin original Dux, is stated by Selden to have been imarily used in this country as one of the appellations of an Earl; but its first nployment as the title of a distinct grade was in the eleventh year of Edward the hird, when the Black Prince, who was already Earl of Chester, though not as yet rince of Wales, was created Duke of Cornwall. In English usage it is thus less ancient an either Earl or Baron, though the military term "Dux" was common even among ie Anglo-Saxons, whilst William the Conqueror is an early instance of a foreign Duke. he Duke of Lancaster (1351) was the next creation, and others followed, though so aringly that when in 1572 the Duke of Norfolk was executed for high treason, the title came wholly extinct. It was speedily revived, however, under James the First, by hom the Dukes of Richmond and Buckingham were created in 1623; whilst Charles the Second restored with full precedence the attainted dukedoms of Norfolk and Somerset, which still constitute the leading titles in the English Peerage. Dukes were anciently created by the ceremony of girding on a sword and throwing a state mantle over the shoulders. They are now, like Peers generally, given their rank by patent. A Duke is entitled to the style of "Most Noble," or more commonly "Your Grace;" but in very formal language he can be spoken of as "The Most High, Potent, and Noble Prince" (see "Forms of Addressing").

The insignia of a Duke are the coronet and mantle. The coronet, which is worn over a crimson velvet cap with a gold tassel, like that of the younger Princes, is a jewelled circle of gold surmounted by eight golden strawberry-leaves: no coronet of a noble must contain jewels. The mantle, as worn on state occasions in Parliament, is made of fine scarlet cloth lined with white taffeta, with four bars of ermine on each side, each bar surmounted with a gold lace. At coronations this robe gives place to a crimson velvet mantle and surcoat, the former doubled from the neck to the elbow, and having four rows of dark spots on each shoulder. A Duchess on the same occasion wears a crimson velvet mantle the cape of which is furred with minever five inches in breadth, and varied ("powdered" is the technical term) by four bars of black ermine: train, two yards on the ground. Her coronet and cap are like the Duke's.

A Duke's eldest son is in courtesy "born in the degree of a Marquess," and therefore follows this order immediately in the table of precedence, and yet in the eye of the law he is only an esquire: in legal phraseology he is accordingly termed "John ——, Esq., commonly called the Marquess of ——." As a rule, he takes by courtesy his father's second title, and is treated as if he were an actual Marquess; yet his title is often "Earl," once (Manchester) it is "Viscount," and once (Somerset) only "Lord," in which cases he will be termed only "Right Hon." but be unaffected in precedence. A Duke's younger sons are born as in the rank of Earls, though never taking the title of such, but simply prefixing the word "Lord" to their Christian names. So a Duke's daughters prefix the word "Lady," but they are "born in the degree of a Marchioness," and rank after these and the wives of Dukes' eldest sons; whilst if a Duke's daughter is the sole heir to his estate she ranks before these last.

Marquesses.—The first known use of this title in England was on the elevation, by Richard the Second in 1386, of Robert de Vere, Earl of Oxford, to be Marquess of Dublin, when the King performed the ceremony of girding a sword to his side and placing a golden coronet on his head. Eleven years later the same monarch made the Earl of Somerset Marquess of Dorset; but no further instance occurs till the reign of Henry the Sixth. The word is said to be derived from Marchio, a title previously employed in the description of both Earls and Barons, especially of those who were "Lords Marches" of the frontier counties towards Wales and Scotland. The French form Marquis has obtained preferential use in this country and was till quite lately adhered to in so esteemed a 'Peerage' as that of 'Lodge;' but it is strongly objected to by some, and one of the charges adduced against it in 'The Book of the Court' is its frequent unwarranted adoption as a travelling-title—which it must be confessed is rather a reason for wishing it abolished than for proving it to be wrong. We have, however, both here and in the Almanack, decided to adopt what seems to be the more favoured form with the upper circles. The German title corresponding to it is Markgraf, which in historical works is usually rendered "Margrave." The dignity itself has never been one of large occurrence among our nobility. Three times, indeed, it became wholly extinct (either by forfeiture or by the elevation of its possessor to a dukedom, which happened to the Peer who was the third to be made Marquess of Dorset); but in the year 1532 the title of Marchioness was bestowed upon the daughter of the Earl of Wiltshire, and in 1551 the Peer who had then succeeded to this latter title was raised to be Marquess of Winchester, thus becoming the founder of what to this day remains our premier marquessate. The style of a Marquess is "Most Honourable," not "Most Noble," though it is stated that in some formal descriptions both he and an Earl may be termed "Most Noble and Puissant Prince."

As to insignia, the coronet of a Marquess differs from that of a Duke by substituting silver balls (technically called "pearls") for four of the eight strawberry-leaves; whilst the robes take but three and a half bars of ermine or rows of spots (that is to say, four on the right side and three on the left). The Marchioness's coronet has eight silver balls with small strawberry-leaves interposed; her robe has three and a half rows of ermine upon the minever, which is reduced to four inches in width, while the train is a yard and three-quarters in length.

A Marquess's eldest son is "born in the degree of an Earl," and takes usually that urtesy-title, though occasionally only that of Viscount; the younger sons are born in is latter rank, and the daughters in that of Countess. In other respects the corre- onding paragraph at the close of "Dukes" applies here also. See, for all degrees, the Table of Precedency" and "Forms of Addressing."

EARLS.—This degree is much older than either of the preceding, as well as much more umerous. Blackstone says that "Earl is a title of nobility so ancient that its origin nnot clearly be traced out. Thus much seems tolerably certain, that among the axons they were called Ealdormen, quasi Elder-men, signifying the same as Senior or nator among the Romans; and also Schiremen, because they had each of them the civil overnment of a several division or shire. On the irruption of the Danes they changed e name to Eorles, which, according to Camden, signified the same in their language. Latin they are called Comites from being the King's attendants. . . . After the Nor- an conquest they were called *Counts or Countees from the French; but they did not ng retain that name themselves, though their shires are from them called countics to is day." This must not, however, be understood to imply that the same Anglo-Saxon obles retained their lands and positions under the Normans with simply an altered me, for we know too well how largely they were dispossessed, and that it was the orman appropriators who were termed "Counts," though they speedily came to revert the title habitual among the conquered people. From the Conquest to Henry the ird "Earls" and "Barons" may thus be said to have been the only dignities existing England. There are stated to have been two or perhaps three orders of Earls, the ghest of which exercised nothing less than a regal jurisdiction—even having power to eate Barons—within the counties of which they were granted seisin and possession, and hich thus became Counties Palatine. A lower order was made Earl of a county but thout this seisin of its territory and with only the tertium denarium or third part of the ofits accruing from pleas in the county court; or probably in some instances there was nply made over to them a considerable tract of land to hold for the service rendered by e county. The great feature to remember is that the older Earls were distinctly unty lords, and thus that the great disproportions which our counties exhibit are nply memorials of the unequal possessions of these various Earls: the first to be created art from a county was Roger Mortimer, made Earl of March in 1328. The rank of rls has largely increased, till now in England it amounts to some two-fifths of the number the Barons; whilst in Scotland, and even more strikingly in Ireland, the proportion Earls among the nobility is larger still. "For many centuries," says Sir Harris colas,† "earldoms have always been conferred by letters-patent or charters. . . . The vestiture has long been dispensed with, and the ancient practice of creating a person rl of some county or town has, from the great increase of dignities in this country, ven place to deriving the title from some village or estate, and even from the name of family. In most instances the title has been limited to the heirs male of the body of e grantee, but remainders are by no means uncommon to the issue of a sister or ughter, or to some other person named in the patent." In the cases of both Earls and arquesses, when the title is that of a locality it usually prefixes the preposition "of," t not when it is the family name; but to this rule there are several real or apparent ceptions, for we have the "of" inserted in spite of identity with the family name in e titles Ashburnham, Cholmondeley, Coventry, Craven, and Onslow, whilst it is itted when we should naturally have expected it in those of Beauchamp, Camden, wdor, Cowley, Ferrers, Manvers, Sondes, Strange, and Vane. The premier earldom the English Peerage is that of Shrewsbury and Talbot, the former of which titles tes from 1442; in the Scottish the earldom of Arundel of 1139 (merged in the dukedom Norfolk); and in the Irish the carldom of Waterford, of 1446. Earls, Viscounts, and rons are all designated "Right Honourable."

Under insignia we note that an Earl's coronet is very distinct from that of any other nk by the fact of its eight silver balls being mounted on golden rays which reach to the of the cap and have small golden strawberry-leaves alternating between them.‡ His ntle is distinguished from the preceding by having but three bars of ermine, &c. A untess wears a similar coronct, and her robe for coronations has three bars of ermine, ninever edging three inches in breadth, and a train a yard and a half on the ground.

* The title "Count" is now purely honorary in France.

† As the name of this learned herald is so peculiar as to be sometimes misspelt we may observe that its correct and plete form is Sir Nicholas Harris Nicolas (familiarly "Sir Harry Nicolas").

‡ Sir Robert Cecil, Earl of Salisbury, was the first Earl to wear a coronet.

An Earl's eldest son is "born in the degree of a Viscount," and usually takes t courtesy-title; otherwise "Lord." Younger sons are esteemed as equal to Barons, a all daughters as Viscountesses; but these latter receive a preference over the former wh is one of the anomalies of the Peerage, they being designated as "Ladies" and "Ri Honourables," while the younger sons (and their wives) are only "Honourables." Ag see at the conclusion of "Dukes" and under "Precedence" and "Addressing."

Viscounts.—This degree, like that of Marquesses, has been but sparingly conferr though a very appreciable addition to its numbers has been made during the past twe years or so. The word, however, was of very ancient usage in the Latin form Vice-con Earl's Deputy or Sheriff, which was thus its original function, and it was of old feu application in France; but its first employment as designating a rank in the Engl nobility was in 1440, when Henry the Sixth elevated John, Lord Beaumont, to the titl Viscount Beaumont. Letters-patent were then made use of limiting the successior heirs male of his body; and this form has ever since been the invariable process in creation of this degree. Twice it became wholly extinct, but it was finally revived 1550 by the elevation of Baron Ferrers to be Viscount Hereford, his successor being n the premier Viscount upon the Roll. In Ireland this degree is far more numerous th in England—37 against 29—the premier being Viscount Gormanston (1478); in Scotla on the contrary, it numbers but five, with Viscount Falkland (1620) for premier. first a viscounty was simply the advancement of a barony, and then its superior acc paniment; but modern Viscounts have usually no second title. It is understood t any English Premier on retiring may claim a viscounty, and in practice we may n perhaps say the same of every Speaker of the House of Commons. The preposit "of" is never used conventionally in the titles of either Viscounts or Barons, though the formal language of their patents it is common enough.

The insignia consist of the coronet distinguished by from twelve to sixteen silver b (fourteen is, we believe, the usual number, but it is left indefinite); and of the mar with two and a half bars of ermine or white fur (i.e., three on the right side and t on the left). A Viscountess's coronet is similar to her husband's, and her coronat robe is marked on the same distinctive rule, and with but two and a half inches f bordering and a train of a yard and a quarter.

A Viscount's eldest son and his daughters are born respectively of the rank of a Ba and of Baronesses; younger sons come lower, but above those of Barons. All sons a daughters without distinction bear the title "Honourable."

Barons.—The word "Baron" is supposed by some to have been derived from Celtic Ber or Bar, which served the Romans for the original of their Baro (plu Barones). The Anglo-Saxons altered the title to Thegnes or "Thanes," and these ter as well as the later one "Baron," were applied both to ecclesiastics and laymen, designate those men of rank who were about the King. "Baron" came thus, for a lo period, to be prefixed to the names of saints (e.g., Baron Saint Jacques), and after "Monsieur" was similarly used down to the fifteenth century: in France the not would even drop the title of "Prince" for that of "Baron," and we read that the fam of Montmorency styled themselves "les premiers Barons de la Chrétienté." A Th under the Anglo-Saxons, if not a courtier as above, was required to possess "fully f hides of his own land," together with a church, a "borough-gate" where he could d pense justice on the Scripture model, and a "kitchen and bell-house" for the exercise hospitality and the due summoning of his guests to its participation. The Norm either introduced or restored the term "Baron," and it is under their rule that we co to recognise the first of the three orders of Barons who successively figure in the hist of this degree.

These were the Barons by Tenure. Amid conflicting and obscure accounts we gat that at the outset these scarcely constituted an order of nobility, for, though the low of them were leading citizens, they were as distinctly subordinated to the Earls of th respective counties as the Knights were or came to be subordinate to themselves. I this low estate was only for a time, and eventually their order had grown to so co manding a position in the kingdom that the term "Barons" was used conventionally the entire nobility, as we find Simon de Montfort, though Earl of Leicester, speaking himself in the warrant issued in the name of King Henry the Third as "Simon Montfort with other Barons," though in the same sentence he speaks of the "Earls a Barons of the realm of England." And even during the period when they had to lo up to the Earls as their chiefs, they still held their assigned territorial baronies imme tely of the King, to whom they had in return to render a stated feudal service. As hey grew in importance they were summoned to attend the King's Great Councils—the ucleus of our Parliaments, or at least of the House of Lords, where those who were 'Barons and Earls" to the King became "Peers" to each other. The dignity of a 3aron was now estimated by the number of his Knights' fees, a Knight being attached) each "fee" or division of his lands, and thus with his retainers contributing to swell ıe troop with which the Baron could accompany the King to war. It was now held ıat the fact of a baronial tenure of land constituted in itself a right to a writ of summons) the Great Council. But by the time of John many of the Barons had become greatly npoverished in their estates, and this led those others who still retained the whole of ıeir ancestral domains to obtain the passing of an enactment dividing the order into 'arones Majores and Barones Minores, the latter being practically no higher than Knights, though it was impossible to deprive them absolutely of their higher title. hese "Lesser Barons," who were called also "Tenants in Chief," appear to have)nstituted the original members of the House of Commons, the King having taken to ımmoning individually the Greater Barons, with the Earls, Archbishops, and Bishops, ıd leaving these others to be summoned collectively by the Sheriff: hence, says Black- one, commenced the separation of the two Houses. As yet, however, the Lower House as not really established, and the Greater Barons constituted the only regular Legisla- ıre for another half-century. Baronies by Tenure have now been long a thing of the ıst, for even in 1669 it was decided that there had been none "for many ages," though ıere is still an earldom—that of Arundel—which is attached to the ducal house of orfolk by the feudal tenure of Arundel Castle.

The dignities of this degree which supplanted them were the Baronies by Writ. We ave just observed that the "tenure" was regarded as giving claim to the "writ," but, ving to the prolonged dissatisfaction at the degraded condition of the Lesser Barons, was enacted in the 49th year of Henry the Third (Dec. 24, 1264) that none should in ture come to Parliament except "those Earls and Barons unto whom the King him- lf vouchsafed to direct his writ of summons." This, though issued in the King's name, as really the proclamation above quoted of Simon de Montfort, who at that time was)lding the King as his prisoner; and he on the same occasion, from his seat of Kenil- orth Castle, ordained what was practically the commencement of the House of ommons—though it was not a separate House till the reign of Edward the Second, ıd it has been remarked that probably the commoners came rather as petitioners to ead and suggest what the Peers were to enact—by directing the election, "along with ıe hundred of the dignified clergy, of two knights for each shire, two citizens for each ty, and two burgesses for each borough." The writs in respect of the nobility appear have been issued but very partially—only "to a small part of the Greater Barons" cording to 'Foster's Peerage.' Following this we read of writs of summons in the th year of Edward the First (1283), constituting a small number of Barons; while in e 22nd of the same King there was published a decree commanding some sixty persons to attend the King wherever he might be, to advise on the affairs of his kingdom," ough whether this summons constituted its recipients Peers of Parliament is by no eans clear. In the year that followed, however (June 24, 1295), an unmistakable writ this character made its appearance, and Baron Mowbray and Segrave still holds his cond title from that year, as he holds his first from the writ of 1283. The writ when llowed by a single sitting in the Lords sufficed to establish the barony, which regularly ssed, when so derived, to the lineal heirs both male and female. These writs are of e class termed Brevia clausa, from being "closed up" with yellow wax sealed with the reat Seal of England. It is under this arrangement that we are occasionally brought to presence of the phenomenon of abeyance, which, as already stated under "General emarks," consists in the co-heirship of more than one daughter or granddaughter. In e case of females, primogeniture is disregarded in the succession of the English bility (though not in that of the Royal Family, nor yet with Barons of Scotland), and us when there exists no heir in the male line, but there exist more than one in the nale, both or all of these latter are equally entitled to the heirship, and not even the th of a grandson to one of them will solve the difficulty so long as his mother and an nt are living, as females of the first line are preferred to males of the second. Then ould there be a plurality of granddaughters and no grandson the abeyance may be olonged, and it is thus conceivable that it might last through several generations, but the prerogative of the Crown, which enables it to cut the knot by forthwith conferring e dignity on any one of the co-heirs, or on any other person who is heir to one of the st co-heirs, or through a brother or sister of some earlier heir—a female of a nearer generation taking preference of a male more remote, but males of the same degr being preferred to females. The succession may thus pass to a cousin, uncle, or aur but cannot go outside of the descendants of the Baron first created. The proce followed by the Sovereign in calling the barony out of abeyance is by letters-patent the case either of a female or of a person already holding a higher rank in the Peerag in that of a male holding no such higher rank it reverts to a writ of summons. B except in this instance and in that of summoning the eldest son of a Peer in his fathe barony during that father's lifetime, there have long ceased to be any new creations "Barons by Writ;" many of the older ones of course remain on the Roll of the Lord for, generally speaking, it is only under these titles that the phenomenon of abeyan can occur.

Lastly, then, we come to the Baronies by Patent. Though now the only form by whi new baronies or any other peerages originate, they are very far indeed from a mode innovation, for Baron Beauchamp of Kidderminster was thus dignified by Richard t Second in 1387. From this date for a long period the processes of writ and patent we followed indifferently; but the former has now wholly died out, and the newly creat Baron now receives his honours by means of a document stamped with the Great Se clearly prescribing the terms of succession—generally limited to his own heirs male. U to the thirteenth year of James the First the creation by letters-patent was accompani by an investiture at the hands of the King, who solemnly arrayed the new Peer in scarlet robe with a hood furred with minever; but in that year it was decided that t patent itself was sufficient, not even the "sitting" being required as under baronies writ. It need hardly be added that the dignity of the one class is in no way inferior that of the other, and that the Barons in the Peerage take precedence among each oth by the date of their creation alone. In all there are now over 310 Barons of Englan Great Britain, or the United Kingdom, with 65 Irish, but only 25 Scottish. The premi English barony is that of Le Despencer, now merged in the viscounty of Falmouth, b dating from 1264. In Scotland the title itself does not make its appearance till 1430, a the premier barony is that of Ballinbriech and Leslie (1437 or earlier), merged in t earldom of Rothes. But the oldest barony of all is in the Irish Peerage, where that Kingsale dates formally from 1181, and can boast as prior even to this an Engli barony by tenure from the Conquest, the family emigrating to Ireland in the ye named (see page 11 on the peculiar privilege attaching to this and another barony). Baron is conventionally called "Lord."

On Life Baronies see "House of Lords" under "Life Peers."

A Baron's insignia comprise the coronet—which from the time of Charles the Secon has been denoted by six silver balls—and the mantle with two bars of white fur. T Baroness wears a similar coronet, and her coronation robe has the cape marked by tw bars of ermine; the minever edging is two inches broad, and the train one yard long.

A Baron's eldest son used once to have the rank of the now extinct order of Knigh Bannerets. As it is we can only note that he comes after the younger sons of Earls, b before those of Viscounts, whilst his younger brothers succeed those latter sons thou they precede Baronets. As with Viscounts, all sons and daughters without distinctio take the designation "Honourable."

NOTE ON CORONETS AND ROBES.—There may be a convenience in our here appendi in immediate succession the scale of variations observed in the form of the two leadi insignia. The following are the distinctions among crowns and coronets:—

Sovereign—4 crosses-pattée and 4 fleurs-de-lis, with 2 arches.
Prince of Wales—the same with only 1 arch.
Princes of "Blood Royal"—the same with no arch.
Princesses of ditto—2 crosses-pattée, 2 strawberry-leaves, and 4 fleurs-de-lis.
Princes and Princesses of "the Blood"—4 strawberry-leaves and 4 fleurs-de-lis.
Dukes—8 strawberry-leaves.
Marquesses—4 strawberry-leaves and 4 "pearls" (silver balls); Marchionesses—8 pea with small strawberry-leaves alternating.
Earls—8 pearls mounted on high golden rays.
Viscounts—About 14 pearls, not mounted.
Barons—6 pearls, not mounted.

Of the mantles of the Peerage those worn in Parliament are of scarlet cloth, lin with white taffeta and with rows or guards of ermine at equal distances with a gold la above each—Dukes having four rows, Marquesses three and a half (see above in loc arls three, Viscounts two and a half, and Barons two. The robes worn at coronations e of crimson velvet, either with a surcoat or the mantle itself being doubled to the bow, with rows of dark spots on each shoulder corresponding in numbers to those under arliamentary robes. The coronation mantles of Peeresses are likewise of crimson lvet, the capes furred with minever pure and "powdered" with bars of ermine also rresponding in numbers to those of the above respective ranks, whilst the edging is ewise of minever, varying in breadth of border from five inches to two, and the trains nge in length from two yards to one.

ARCHBISHOPS.—The general character of this division of our Introduction seems to nder it advisable to consider the Spiritual Peers together at the close of our remarks the Lords Temporal, though in rank of precedence Archbishops stand superior even Dukes. The Archbishop of Canterbury has twenty-four Bishoprics in his Province ıcluding his own see, against ten in that of York; he thus takes a position of decided periority, being placed above the Lord Chancellor, whilst his colleague follows after at high official, their respective appellations being also distinguished as "Primate of l England" and "Primate of England," whilst the one styles himself "By Divine ovidence" and the other "By Divine Permission," as do the Bishops. To the Archishop of Canterbury, who is thus the highest personage in England after the Royal mily, the duty pertains of crowning a new sovereign, and it has been decreed that wheresoever the Court may be, the King and Queen are his domestic parishioners." ıe Courts of Arches and of Peculiars are under the authority of this prelate. The rchbishop of York crowns the Queen-Consort when there is one, and is her perpetual aplain. Both are Metropolitans and are addressed as "Your Grace" and "The Most everend." In respect of their mitres, most 'Peerages' state that they do not differ m those of Bishops, but 'Lodge' asserts that they rise out of ducal coronets, and s the 'Encyclopædia Britannica' confirms, though adding that the decoration is vithout authority:" see at close of "Bishops." At coronations the Archbishop of nterbury wears over his surplice a superb cope reaching from his shoulders to his feet.

BISHOPS.—There are at present thirty-two of these ecclesiastics in the English Church in lition to the two Archbishops, who act as Bishops in their own dioceses. There are o numerous Suffragan and Assistant Bishops, but these, while they remain such, can ver form a part of the Peerage. The twenty-four sees or dioceses in the Province of nterbury are:—

Bangor, Bath and Wells, Canterbury, Chichester, Ely, Exeter, Gloucester and Bristol, Hereford, Lichfield, Lincoln, Llandaff, London, Norwich, Oxford, Peterborough, Rochester, St. Albans, St. Asaph, St. David's, Salisbury, Southwell, Truro, Winchester, Worcester.

e ten of York Province are:—

Carlisle, Chester, Durham, Liverpool, Manchester, Newcastle, Ripon, Sodor and Man, Wakefield, York.

)f these, St. Albans, Southwell, and Truro in the former list, and Liverpool, Manster, Newcastle, and Wakefield in the latter, are of recent institution, the original al having been twenty-four, in addition to the see of Sodor and Man, which entitles its upant to an honorary seat in the House of Lords, without the right to vote or to take part in its proceedings, the Bishop having his own legislative position in the Manx use of Keys. When an increase upon the twenty-four was commenced, it was cted that new appointees should not sit in the House of Lords until vacancies se among their seniors, the new prelate chosen to fill the vacancy being placed in turn the foot of the junior list, so that the former number of seats in the House should er be exceeded.* Thus the newly-created sees rank on full equality with the old, l a rotation is maintained among their occupants which, except as to the statement in next sentence, follows the strict law of seniority alone. But a special feature sists in the continuous seniority of the three Bishops of London, Durham, and nchester, who are thus independent of the rotation prevailing among the others. In ; we come to have practically four orders among the thirty-two Bishops:—

1. London, Durham, and Winchester—invariably Peers of Parliament.
2. The twenty-four seniors of the remainder—Peers through seniority.
3. Seven juniors—awaiting seniority for peerage.
4. The Bishop of Sodor and Man—incapable of a full peerage.

*But a Bishop who has once attained the seniority will not forfeit his seat in the Lords though he accepts slation to another see that has become vacant. This was exemplified in 1895 on the Bishop of Newcastle ming Bishop of Chichester.

Bishops rank in the Peerage between Viscounts and Barons, but the three in the fi of our orders take precedence of all the rest—London first, as Provincial Dean of t Archbishop of Canterbury and Bishop of the capital; Durham next, as formerly Co Palatine of his diocese; and Winchester third, as anciently Earl of Southampton and S dean of the Province of Canterbury. We are told that the power and wealth of t last see were formerly so great that its occupant, William de Edyngton, having be elected Archbishop of Canterbury, preferred to remain in the position he then he observing shrewdly, "Though Canterbury has the higher rack, yet Winchester has t deeper manger." The Bishops in Anglo-Saxon days ranked with the Ealdormen Earls, and William the Conqueror converted their lands into baronies, and thus requi from them attendance at Court and military service. So late as 1722, we read that t then Bishop of Durham, Dr. Talbot, was disposed to keep up some trace of the ea past—in respect both of its secular Bishops and of his own status as Earl Palatine—making his appearance at a review held by George the First "in a lay habit of purp with jack boots and his hat cocked, and a black wig tied behind him like a milita officer." But this incident only proves by its very comicality how different has been t ordinary conduct of the Lords Spiritual, at any rate from the days of the Plantagenet and though the Bishops hold their place in the House of Peers as having been origina Barons, they have been systematically so opposed to intermeddling with matters blood that they have refused to give their votes in trials for high treason and otl crimes. Their position next after the Viscounts was assigned them in the reign Henry the Eighth, so that the instruction at the coronation of Charles the Second t they should "precede all the lay Lords" may be viewed as a mere temporary solace their entire exclusion from Parliament under the Commonwealth. It must further noted that Bishops as well as Archbishops are Peers of Parliament but not Peers of t Realm; they are not even Life Peers unless they remain till death at their official pos

Prior to the disestablishment of the Church of Ireland, the Irish Bishops used to three at a time by rotation and the two Archbishops by turns. Of those appoint previous to that Act (1869), there are now but two Bishops remaining (and one of th has become an Archbishop), who, though they have no longer a seat in the Hou are allowed to retain the title of "Lord." The entire hierarchy are treated in otl respects according to their former precedency, but the Archbishops and Bishops of t Roman Catholic Church are now privileged to rank as equals among them.

A Bishop's mitre is a high cleft cap of ivory, encircled at the base with a jewell golden fillet, and having two fringed pendants hanging below from within. That of t Bishop of Durham (as a vestige of the above ancient Count Palatinate) takes a du coronet in place of the fillet, and has its two divisions edged with beads and finish with two "orbs." If the Archbishops adopt this style of one of their own subordinat it will surely be generally desired that usage should have ere this supplied them w the "authority" said to be lacking. The Parliamentary costume of both Archbish and Bishops consists of a rochet or surplice with lawn sleeves, and a square black c The crosier, the symbol of a shepherd, is presumably still borne upon occasions: that an Archbishop terminates in a cross, that of a Bishop in a shepherd's crook.

Note on the Terms "Lord," "Lady," "Hon.," &c.—The title "Lord" is in t first place the regular conventional designation of a Baron, and frequently in t older titles it is even substituted in the patent. Secondly, it is used in common parla as a general term inclusive of "Viscount," "Earl," or "Marquess." Thirdly, in courte titles it is correctly used in the names of many eldest sons of Earls, and may again substituted for "Viscount," &c., as above. Fourthly, it is used prefixed to a Christi name to designate a younger son of a Duke or Marquess. Fifthly, it is applied, as a ju cial title, to a Scottish Lord of Session. The title "Lady" has even more variatio for whilst borne by wives or sisters in all these cases except the last, it is also used of t wives of Baronets, and, in practice though not legally, of those of Knights also. Wh the word "Lord," or any other title of honour, is added to a Christian name, as "Alfr Lord Tennyson," "Edward, Earl of Derby," "Maria, Duchess," &c., the title is mer individualised by the name prefixed, and this is the regular form observed in the Roll the Lords as well as in authorship and many other ways. None but the veriest ty would be guilty of a transposition such as "Lord Alfred Tennyson," which would amou to converting the poet-Baron into the younger son of some imaginary Duke or Marque

The prefix "Hon." is given not only to sons and daughters of Peers but also to present or past Maids of Honour, all Justices of the High Court (not Lords Justices, w are all made Privy Councillors, nor Lords of Appeal, who hold Life Peerages), to Lo of Session, the Lord Provost of Glasgow (during office), and especially to Judges and members of Governments in the Colonies. "Right Hon." is the title of a Privy Councillor and of a Peer lower than a Marquess (also Peeresses and issue—see under "Duke" in "Modes of Addressing"); it is also given during term of office to Lord Mayors and the Lord Provost of Edinburgh. "Hon. Lady" may denote either the daughter of a Viscount or Baron who has married a "Sir," or else any lady who has married an "Hon. Sir," provided that his "Hon." is the mark of a Peer's son and not of a mere official appointment.

On the Marriage of Peeresses, &c.—A Peeress in her own Right retains her title after marriage, and if her husband's rank is the superior (either in degree or in date of creation) she is designated by the two titles jointly, the acquired one last: her hereditary claim still holds good in spite of any marriage whether higher or lower. No rank held by a woman can confer any title or even precedence upon her husband: but the rank of Peeress in her own right is inherited by her eldest son, to whomsoever she may have been married; or, in default of a son, by a daughter, or it may, through a plurality of these, pass temporarily into abeyance. With a Peeress by marriage (a Peer's widow) the case is the same as to retention of a former superior title provided her second marriage is to an actual Peer, though this is the case by etiquette only, for even if she is a Duchess married to a Baron it will be as a Baroness only that she will be summoned to any royal function (conventionally, on the other hand, she is known by whichever title is the higher, and if both are the same in degree then by the one which is the older in creation); while if her second marriage is only to a Lord by Courtesy, or to a commoner, she then in strictness forfeits the title she had acquired by her former marriage and comes to her second husband in the same rank with which she came to her first, though custom usually ratifies her by continuing the former honour. If the daughter of a Peer but not coming under either of the preceding heads, upon marrying an actual Peer she takes the rank of her husband, whether it exalts or lowers her; if she marries a Lord holding the special courtesy-title of an eldest son, she similarly takes his title if equal or superior to her own, but if inferior she sometimes adopts it with her own prefixed, as (of a Duke's daughter) "The Lady Alice, Viscountess [or Countess] B.," but as frequently (always if he is only "Lord") she ignores the courtesy-title and is known as "The Lady Alice A.," adopting the surname of the family she had entered, exactly as if she had married a younger son instead of an heir; lastly, if she marries either a commoner or the son of a Peer who does not enjoy an eldest son's distinctive courtesy-title, she then at the least retains her own rank, as denoted by "The Lady Alice" or "The Honourable Mrs. John" (not "Hon. Alice"), prefixed to her husband's surname, but rises with her husband if she was previously beneath him, so that her "Honourable Alice" may be converted into "Lady John" (the daughter of a Duke will in any such case remain "The Lady Alice," since she cannot marry any higher or even equal degree, whilst the daughter of a Marquess or Earl may marry a higher rank and thus become "The Lady John," though she will continue "The Lady Alice" on marrying a lower or an equal—the retention when "equal" being due to the anomalous fact that any Peer's daughter ranks one degree higher than either of the same Peer's younger sons). Any lady noble by birth will continue—though only by the etiquette of society—after re-marriage to a lower rank or that of a commoner, to enjoy whatever title she was known by during her former marriage; but the widow of a Lord by Courtesy, if not herself noble by birth, forfeits upon a second marriage any right to a title which had accrued to her by a first, though here again custom is much given to humouring her by continuing the prefix "Lady," but not, we are told, that of "Honourable" (a Baronet's widow has an express right to continue "Lady," but a Knight's retains the distinction by courtesy only). The daughter of a Peer who previously bore the title "Honourable," will on marrying a Sir" become "The Hon. Lady B.," whilst if her previous title was "Lady" (with Christian name) she will be entitled "The Lady Alice B." A commoner marrying her a Peer or a Peer by Courtesy follows her husband's style exactly, from "Duchess" downward to "The Lady John B." or "The Hon. Mrs. Charles B." (as to the husband's Christian names, they may not always be needed after "Mrs." if no uncertainty is caused by their omission, and in point of fact they are very seldom used); the occurrence of a second marriage in her case is governed by the same rule, and if she thereby descends in rank she has no atom of claim to retain her former dignity. Thus while a lady can return by marriage to her original status, she has unlimited capacities of rising thereby, and there is only one case in which she can sink by it to a grade lower than that of her birth—that, namely, in which a Peer's daughter marries an actual Peer of a rank two steps lower than her father's. A Duke's daughter, as we have seen, is "born the degree of a Marchioness," and it has been remarked that if a Duke had four daughte the three eldest of whom married Earls or Barons while the youngest married her fathe footman, this last would retain her original rank, while the others, though wedded Peers of the Realm, would all have sunk one or more degrees beneath her

A morganatic marriage is one expressly entered into as such on account of the low rank of the wife; it is lawful wedlock and renders the offspring legitimate, but exclud both them and their mother from any claim to the father's rank or property.

Classification of the Peerage.—Even neglecting the above degrees of Duke Marquesses, Earls, &c., we find our subject so complicated that we have to arrange under the following ramifications (for particulars see the two following divisions):—

I. The House of Lords.
  1. Peers created.
    (1) Hereditary Peers.
    (2) Life Peers (Law Lords).
    (3) Official Peers (Lords Spiritual).
  2. Peers elected.
    (1) For Life (Irish Representative Peers).
    (2) For one Parliament (Scottish Peers).

II. The Peerage outside of the House.
  1. Peers of Full Rank.

    (2) Irish Peers } Imperial titles or as Representatives.
  2. Peeresses in Own Right.
    (1) Imperial Peeresses (male heirs going to House of Lords on succession)
    (2) Scottish or Irish Peeresses.
  3. Peers by Courtesy.
    (1) Eldest sons of Dukes, Marquesses, and Earls (in Scotland most others)
    (2) Younger sons of Dukes and Marquesses.
    (3) Younger sons of Earls, with all sons of Viscounts and Barons.

Forms of Admittance.—The House of Lords, the original Great Council and s Parliament of England, has its early history sketched in the preceding division under t heading of "Barons," where also the more ancient credentials of Tenure and Summo are explained. At the present time, with certain special exceptions, it may be s that all peerages are conferred by letters-patent under the Great Seal of England. may now be added that no new peerages are conferred which do not carry with them right to sit in the House of Lords; for even if conferred upon a female the dignity made to pass by preference to the heirs male descended from her, whilst the ot exception—that of the power of the Sovereign to create one new Peer of Ireland for eve

hree peerages that have lapsed—has ceased to exist through the renunciation of this ›ower by her present Majesty. The exceptions to the adoption of letters-patent still ›ccasionally exercised are the following two. The first is described above under 'Barons" in the paragraph upon Baronies by Writ; whilst the second consists in the ummoning to the Lords, during his father's lifetime, of the heir to one of the higher ›eerages, who is thus called to proceed immediately to the functions of a legislator under he temporary title of a barony of his father's. In this case it must be noted that no ıew hereditary peerage is thus created, for on the death of the father the son steps into he higher title and his own separate peerage passes out of sight. Should the son, how-ver, die first and leave an heir of his own, that heir if of age will take the temporary itle and hold it on till the death of the elder Peer. It must also not be forgotten that hough in general the process of Writ of Summons has gone out of use, there are numbers f the existing baronies which are held through the issue of such writs centuries ago, and hat it is almost exclusively in their case that we are so frequently confronted by the ›henomenon of "abeyance." Again, there is a lower form of the Writ of Summons ssued at the commencement of every new Parliament, by which every Peer who is lready created—not the elected Representative Peers—receives as it were a circular ıforming him of the re-assembling of the House, though of course it is of far more legal ınport than a mere reminder. So too, in this lower sense of the term, a new Peer eceives a writ of summons concurrently with his letters-patent.

The ceremonies of the admission of a new Peer may be thus described, and they apply ither to the creation, succession, or mere elevation of a member of the House. Garter ›ing of Arms (or "Garter" as he is briefly termed), or it may be some Herald in his lace, makes his entry bare-headed and attired in his tabard, holding the patent and ›rit of summons; the new Peer himself follows, between two nobles of his own degree, ll three being robed; the new accession makes his obeisance to the Lord Chancellor, ›ho enjoins that his credentials shall be read; the oaths are next administered, the writ anded over for keeping by the Clerk of the House, and the new Peer conducted to his ›at, from which he forthwith rises again and returns less formally to the Lord ›hancellor to receive his congratulations. A new Bishop is similarly introduced by two ›piritual Peers, but without the secularising company of a Herald. At every new ›arliament the oaths must be taken afresh by each Peer before he can resume his seat.

Arrangement and Procedure.—The seats in the House are thus disposed—at ›ast in theory, but it must strictly be borne in mind that the practice of sitting by ›arty to a considerable extent obliterates the arrangement by rank. A throne is rovided for the Sovereign, with seats to the right and left under the same canopy for ıe two eldest of the Royal Princes, the Prince of Wales of course occupying that on the ght. Further off on the same side are forms for the two Archbishops, the three leading ›ishops, and then the other ecclesiastics; to the left are those for the Lord President and ›ord Privy Seal, the Dukes, the Marquesses, and the Earls. In front of the throne is the ›oolsack, the seat of the Lord Chancellor when neither the Sovereign is present nor the House in Committee, and which moreover he quits when making a speech (taking his lace according to his rank); across the House in front of the woolsacks are the seats ‹ the Viscounts, and behind these those of the Barons. So recently as at the date ‹ 'The Book of the Court' we read of a "row of woolsacks" in front of the ‹iscounts, upon which were seated the Judges, Queen's Counsel, and Masters in hancery, who, "not being Barons, sit in the House of Peers merely to give their ıvice when the same is required." Nowadays the time of these is otherwise nployed. They used to be kept in a somewhat humiliating state of vassaldom, even ıe Judges having, on occasions of the Sovereign entering the House, to remain standing ter the Peers until they received a separate permission to be seated; whilst in the overeign's absence they might sit but "not be covered" till the Chancellor signified to ıem the leave of the Lords. The Queen's Counsel and Masters in Chancery were never) be covered.

In the presence of the Sovereign in state the Lords are dressed in their robes but not ›vered; they rise at his or her entry and make their obeisance, which is returned, hereupon the Commons are sent for, who on arrival stand at the bar while their Lord-ıips are seated. In the Sovereign's absence the Peers at their entry make obeisance to ıe throne. Three Peers are sufficient to constitute a quorum, and the Lord Chan-ellor may count as one. The House gives its votes, when these are formally ›quired, by each member answering "Content" or "Not Content," but the Commons ›stem of dividing in lobbies is also in vogue. In case of a division, an equality of votes is a negative of the proposition, as there is no casting-vote, but the Lord Chancellor hin self participates in the division. This official, it need hardly be added, is by no mean the regulator of the proceedings of the House as the Speaker is in the Commons ; instea of being elected by the vote of the House he is a member of the Ministry of the day, an he sits in the Sovereign's absence as an ornamental figure-head, whose presence, or tha of a deputy, is essential to the conduct of proceedings.* The Peers possess the right c voting by proxy, but for some forty years this has been practically dropped.

Hereditary Peers.—Our two tables have brought out the fact that there are Peer of Parliament who are not hereditary, just as there are hereditary Peers who are nc Peers of Parliament. The second table, however, shows that the former class of excep tions are comparatively few. These are noticed in our next two paragraphs, while th third exhibits the yet further anomaly of a class of hereditary Peers within the House but yet not succeeding by heredity thereto.

Life Peers.—This class is restricted to a very small number of Law Lords, a present only five. The first creation of the kind occurred in 1856 in the case of Lor Westbury, when the Peers deliberated on the innovation and came to the decision tha a Life Temporal Peer was not entitled to a seat in their House. An Act was accordingl passed giving power to the Sovereign to elevate two Judges of Appeal into Life Baron of Parliament, and in 1876 the number was enlarged so that it now admits the Lor Chief Justice and all the Lords of Appeal in Ordinary, whether active or retired. Th wives of these Peers take the title of "Lady" with all the precedence of Baronesses, bu no titular distinction extends to any of their children.

Official Peers.—These are the Lords Spiritual, already described under th preceding division. In point of fact they usually prove to be Life Peers, but only o condition of their retaining their posts till death. Should they retire they not onl relinquish their seats but the right to the designation of Lord. A further mark of th distinction between this class and the preceding is seen in the fact of their wives bearin no token whatever of nobility, even the wife of an Archbishop being simply "Mrs."

Peers Elected.—We may thus notice conjointly the Scottish † and Irish Representa tive Peers, both of which are full Peers of their respective nations, and are elected by th entire adult Peerages of these as specially convened by the Sovereign. Those of Irelan number 28, and are chosen for life ; those of Scotland 16, who are elected or re-electe at every fresh Parliament. Viscounts Hawarden and Powerscourt, of the Irish Representatives, have since election received the Imperial titles respectively of Earl D Montalt and Baron Powerscourt. Elected Peers do not receive the Writ of Summon on the assembling of a new Parliament.

THE PEERAGE OUTSIDE OF THE HOUSE.

Scottish and Irish Peers.—The Peerages of Scotland and Ireland contain every one of the degrees found in the Imperial Peerage, except Princes of the Blood Royal an the Spiritual Peers, so that, broadly speaking, the only difference between the tw former and the latter consists in their exclusion from the House of Lords. The Duke o Hamilton is the Premier Peer of Scotland, and the Duke of Leinster of Ireland Besides, however, the Representative Peers noticed immediately above there are very many who possess Imperial hereditary titles in addition to their more ancient an native ones—in fact this is the case with nearly three-fifths of the Scottish Peers an

* The "Lord High Chancellor of England" finds his more exalted functions in his position as the first judicia officer of the Crown and the first lay person in the realm after the Royal Family. He is created by the mer delivery of the Great Seal into his custody. He is ex officio a Privy Councillor, he has the appointment of all justice of the peace, is visitor of all royal foundations, patron of the smaller Crown livings, and guardian of infants, idiots and lunatics; he presides over the Court of Chancery, and has been assigned the honourable title of "Keeper of th King's Conscience." Till the time of James the First the post did not carry with it an hereditary peerage, but wa at first always filled by ecclesiastics, of whom Cardinal Wolsey is the most eminent example. It was when Henr the Eighth had resolved to overthrow the Church that he transferred the appointment to Sir Thomas More.

† It may here be remarked upon this form once for all that there is an objection in Scotland to the word "Scotch;" the people themselves are "Scots," and their adjective is "Scottish." Their Education Department has however, been formally christened by the Southern innovation, and other exceptions may turn up from time to time, as it would take a bold man to dispute in the case of a certain well-known liquor and powder, while the men tion of a "Scottish" terrier might hardly suggest a recognisable animal. Again, the Scotsman Boswell uses the form "Scotch" habitually in his 'Life of Johnson,' so that certainly no one can say that "the decree has been made absolute."

early half of the Irish. These Imperial titles in a large majority of instances are nferior in rank to the native ones; still there are many which are superior, and many thers are either wholly identical or of equal rank under a different appellation. Such 'eers are known conventionally by whichever title is the higher one, or, where the two re equal, whichever they may prefer (often the two are then conjoined); but they sit nd vote in the House of Lords by their Imperial designation, be it higher or lower. 'hus in the newspaper reports of debates in the House we find these Peers mentioned y their conventional titles, but in the division lists we meet with the Imperial ones, 'hich, when inferior, do not acquire familiarity with the general reading public. In ur Alphabetical Directory all biographical notices are given under the conventional tles, and when these are other than the ones by which the Peers in question "sit," ich other titles will invariably be added, whilst these latter will also be given in their wn alphabetical position with references to the former. Nevertheless, as there may be n occasional convenience in having them in juxtaposition by themselves, we append the llowing pair of lists, under each of which the conventional or higher title is printed in alics.

PEERESSES IN OWN RIGHT.—Peerages are occasionally granted immediately to ladies distinction or the widows of distinguished men; but frequently the instances falling ıder this heading are the result of regular inheritance when, as we have noted under Barons," the line is open to females in default of males. Thus it results that some of ıe Peeresses now upon the list have male heirs who will succeed them in the ensuing ıeration and take their seats by strict right in the House of Lords; while on the other ınd several peerages now occupied by males will fall to the other sex, and thus for a me take leave of that House.

PEERS BY COURTESY.—We now remove a step further from the Peerage proper and ırn to the sons and daughters of Peers, some of whom are heirs to peerages themselves, hile another class under this category never can be such. In the case of eldest sons, ıose of Dukes, Marquesses, and Earls take as a general rule the second titles of their spective fathers, for all the higher Peers possess at least two, and some of them quite multiplicity. But no law exists in the matter, though each family has usually its tablished custom. With some of them two titles are adopted alternately, and in some stances again we find that when an eldest son has been removed by death the second n receives a title different from the ordinary one; whilst if the deceased heir leaves a n to step into his place that son will take his own title if there is no other for him among ose of the grandfather, but not necessarily if there are three or more (compare the les of the present heirs of the Duke of Westminster and Earl Fitzwilliam). Yet rther, we find deviations more or less from any of the titles of the fathers, as when the ord "Lord" or "Viscount" is prefixed to the family name, or in such cases as Viscount Trafalgar" instead of "Viscount Merton of Trafalgar" for the son of Earl elson, or "Lord Haddon" instead of "Lord Manners of Haddon" for the grandson the Duke of Rutland. Courtesy titles can be bestowed like this last upon the eldest n of the heir, provided the grandfather possesses at least three titles; but they can ver pertain to any collateral relative, even a brother, who may happen to be a pre-mptive heir. Again, in the Scottish Peerage the eldest sons of Viscounts and Barons e usually known by the term "Master of" prefixed to the titles of their fathers. The unger sons of Dukes and Marquesses only are distinguished by the word "Lord" with eir Christian names; while other sons—as well as the younger sons of Earls and all ns of Viscounts and Barons (except as just noticed for the Scottish custom)—are known the similar prefix "The Honourable." Returning to grandsons we observe that the dest son of the eldest son of a Duke is sure to hold some subordinate title of the grand-ther; and so with the grandson of a Marquess if the son's courtesy-title is "Earl," but t if it is "Viscount" (just as with the sons of an actual Viscount), though in the ottish Peerage the eldest son of even a Baron-by-courtesy will be called "Master" e "Strathmore, Earl of"—son Lord Glamis, grandson Master of Glamis); and that the unger sons of an eldest son of a Duke are also designated in accordance with the style their father: if he is called a Marquess they will prefix "Lord" to their names,* but an Earl they can only be "Honourable." The present Duke of Richmond has a eat-grandchild bearing the title "Honourable" as child of a Baron by courtesy. milarly the younger sons of the eldest son of a Marquess (who will be styled her "Earl" or "Viscount") can in any case be only "Honourables," as are all e sons of the eldest sons of Earls; whilst the offspring of the younger sons of all ers and of all sons of Viscounts and Barons are Esquires only. The daughters Dukes, Marquesses, and Earls take the prefix "Lady" before their Christian mes, whilst those of Viscounts and Barons take "Honourable" like the sons. It ll be observed that in the case of Earls the daughters thus receive technically higher distinction, than the sons, being treated exactly as the daughters of Dukes d Marquesses, while the sons obtain only the title assigned to those of Viscounts d Barons; but the term "Lady," as we have already remarked, is of extremely wide plication, and when the daughter of a Baron marries a Baronet and thus becomes The Honourable Lady," we see that the word "Honourable," which marks her lineage, really of the higher value of the two. Granddaughters, the offspring of the eldest son a Duke or Marquess, are styled "Lady" if their father's title is either "Marquess" or Earl," but if it is only "Viscount," then they, like those of the eldest son of an Earl, e "Honourable" only. Granddaughters of Viscounts and Barons, since their fathers can never be higher than "Honourables," will bear no title any more than the grand sons. As to the occasional instances in which the term "Lord" or even a higher titl is found applied to an heir of a Viscount or Baron, there are various ready explanations first, and most frequently, the title belongs to some higher rank held by the father unde another Peerage (say Scottish or Irish); secondly, the mother of the heir may be Peeress in her own right, and the heir's title may be obtained upon her side instead o the father's; thirdly, a Scottish Lord of Session may be the heir. Lists of Courtes Titles are given in various 'Peerages,' and one is contained in the Supplement to ou ALMANACK; but the compiler of 'Dod' has performed a valuable service by collectin an extensive list of the subsidiary titles of Peers, such as may be said to include an very probable new designations of eldest sons. He adds the following interestin summary of titles held in plurality:—"The Duke of Atholl has 22, the Duke of Argyll 17 the Duke of Hamilton 16, the Marquess of Bute 15, the Duke of Buccleuch 15, the Duk of Northumberland 13, the Duke of Abercorn 12, the Marquesses of Huntly, Lansdowne and Lothian each 11, the Duke of Montrose and the Earl of Wemyss each 10, the Duk of Beaufort 9; while smaller numbers occur in profusion throughout the Peerage." Ou Alphabetical Directory will be found to contain in its proper position every subordinat title which is supplied either by this list or by any other source at our command.

* It is singular enough to be worth noting that at the present time there is not a single instance in the entire rage of a Duke's younger grandson bearing the title of "Lord;" either the son is an Earl by courtesy (in which nt his younger sons are only "Honourable"), or if a Marquess he has no second son. The only instance we e been able to discover in recent 'Peerages' is that of an infant son of the Marquess of Hamilton (now 2nd Duke Abercorn), who was styled Lord Claud Francis Hamilton, but who lived only two months.

SCOTTISH LORDS OF SESSION.—We have now stepped outside the Peerage altogether for the word "Lord" prefixed to the names of these Judges, or sometimes even to title different from their names, is strictly an official honour, and may be compared either t the term "Lord Justice" in England or to that of "Bishop" if without any prospect o entering the House of Lords. It confers no distinction upon the wives. There are bu eleven of these Lords, and their names are given in their alphabetical position. For list of them see the ALMANACK under "Scotland."

THE PRIVY COUNCIL.

THIS important body is a council of state held by the Sovereign to concert matters fo the public welfare. A Privy Councillor is chosen at the Sovereign's will, and no paten is necessary; the required oath once taken he becomes a Councillor for life or for the lif of the Sovereign, though subject to removal or resignation. The number, which at th first was only about 12, is now indefinite: at present there are some 220 in the Counci of Great Britain and 60 in that of Ireland. On the accession of a new Sovereign it must be reconstituted within six months. The Lord President of the Council is chairman o the British Council, and the Lord Lieutenant of the Irish. The duties of these, o rather of the former, are defined as "to attend the Sovereign's person, to manage the debates in Council, to propose matters from the Sovereign at the Council table, and t report to the Sovereign the resolutions of the Council thereupon." The Sovereign with its advice can dissolve or prorogue Parliament, and in some urgent cases he can issue proclamations and enforce them by pains and penalties. The Council is charged with the duty of enquiring into (but not punishing) trespasses against the law, and has cognisance in colonial and Admiralty causes, and in matters of lunacy and idiocy.

As noted above, there is a distinct Council for Ireland, though Scotland is content t participate in the larger and more important one, the former being concerned solely with Irish affairs. The members of both Councils range down from the first Prince of the Blood Royal to private gentlemen possessing no title except the dignified one of "Right Honourable," which is conferred by the membership itself. This title unfortunately is identical with that assigned to the majority of Peers, and even Courtesy Peers, so that in the case of these, from an Earl downwards, there is no way of stating clearly thei position as Councillors except by the additional letters "P. C.;" and in the case of Dukes or Marquesses the difficulty comes to be the same, for "Right Honourable" must not be substituted for "Most Honourable" or "His Grace." The two lists of members as presented in the ALMANACK are arranged in accordance with the official roll, which follows strictly the Table of Precedence, and those wishing to familiarise themselves with that table may find interest in tracing out the observance of its laws as here displayed. Thus after the Royal members and highest officials there come the Dukes of England, then one of Scotland (Argyll, whose older title is Scottish), next two of Great Britain (Portland and Northumberland), and then two of the United Kingdom (Westminster and Fife). The Marquesses follow on the same system, succeeded by the Marquess of Lorne as a Duke's eldest son. Next come the Earls, followed by four younger sons of Dukes (there being no eldest sons of Marquesses); the Viscounts; the rquesses' younger sons; the Bishop of London (ex officio, as are the Archbishops); Barons; the Speaker; Secretaries of State who are commoners; Earls' younger s; one Baron's eldest son; and now the Table of Precedency reaches the grade of Privy Council itself, from which point all distinctions are disregarded, and the nes succeed each other in order of seniority alone. To be a Privy Councillor is to oy a higher rank in precedence than that of a Baronet, so that Baronets, Knights, commoners are now mixed up heterogeneously, their differences in rank, important hey are in themselves, being looked upon as minor considerations, in view of their mon membership of this honourable Council. Thus, while recognising the scientific its of an arrangement according to precedence, we here submit for its practical venience a list of the names in alphabetical order with dates of entry of each. ere no initial is added the member belongs to the Council of Great Britain; an enotes that of Ireland; and G. B. & I. mark membership of both.

THE BARONETAGE.

General Remarks.—This degree is sometimes accounted the lowest grade of t nobility, and, as was noticed under "Barons," its title grew out of a lower division that degree. As re-started under James the First it was, however, a totally differe body; but being hereditary it stands as intermediate between the Peerage proper a the Knightage. The Table of Precedence places it inferior to the Order of the Garte but this is practically a matter of no consequence, since both that Order and th of the Thistle and St. Patrick are restricted as a rule to nobles of far higher ra than that of a Baronet. It has no political privileges attached, and consequently th are scarcely any means, as there are with Peers, for ascertaining the correct successi so that in cases of the extinction of a direct line there are frequently claimants comi forward who trace their pedigree to a remote bearer of the title, whilst the data verifying their claims may be wholly inadequate. The honour of a baronetcy is confer by patent alone, and the recipient is not required to kneel personally at the Sovereig feet as has been the custom in the conferment of a knighthood. He can, however, through this ceremony if he pleases, without any fee, and indeed without so doing he not a Knight Baronet. His eldest son when of age could also, up to 1827, claim to knighted if he desired, and King James at the outset made a rule of knighting all he apparent. The Order, in all the three Kingdoms, was instituted at first as a means raising money, though other objects were held out.* The recipients, who were to limited in number, were to be gentlemen "of good birth and fortune," possessed of less than a thousand pounds per annum clear, and in case of war they were to occu posts of honour near to the royal standard. The rank has been greatly enlarged both to actual numbers and lowering of the qualifications, whilst the money payment wholly ceased, though, to preserve the ancient form of warrant, a tally is struck at Exchequer and handed to the new Baronet by way of receipt. An instance is record of the grant of a baronetcy to a female—Dame Mary Bolles, of Osberton, Notts (16 in the Scottish Baronetage), and it is stated that this is not quite the only one.
Baronet has no coronet or robes, and in the English and Irish Orders no badge whate beyond the device of "the bloody hand of Ulster" to be charged upon the coats of ar of their members. Early in the present reign an effort was made on the joint behalf Baronets and Knights Bachelors to obtain some further distinctive mark, such as higher Orders of Knighthood possess in profusion ; but it was ineffectual, it is stat because "too much was asked." The wives of Baronets are Baronetesses, but the wor scarcely ever used ; they are styled "Lady" without any Christian name, or "Dam with the Christian name, and these titles they have the special privilege of retaining a a second marriage though to a commoner. Designation of a Baronet, Sir A. B., Bart

* King James was still afraid of causing offence to the Peerage by creating a grade of nobles in such mann but Hume assures us that in that day "each rank of nobility had its price," so that the Earl of Salisbury had too good reason for stifling his Sovereign's scruples with the observation, "Tush, sir, the money will do you g and the honour will do them very little."

BARONETS OF ENGLAND, GREAT BRITAIN, AND THE UNITED KINGDOM.—We have re precisely the same three historical distinctions that we met with under the Peers (General Remarks"): Baronets created up to 1707 rank as "Baronets of England;" om 1707 to 1800 as "Baronets of Great Britain;" and after 1800 as "Baronets of the nited Kingdom"—the Scottish creations continuing by the side of the first only, and e Irish by the side of first and second. The English Order was instituted by James e First in 1611, ostensibly for the purpose of providing means to effect the settlement Ulster, then in a state of anarchy. A sufficient sum of money was required from ch of the 200 gentlemen to whom the honour was awarded to provide for the mainte- nce of thirty foot-soldiers at eightpence per day for three years; the total of this was out £1095, and the first year's instalment was to be paid down in advance. King mes's successors, moreover, paid no heed to the limitation of numbers, so that by the ign of Charles the Second the 200 had increased to 888. There are now about a ndred short of this latter figure. The first to receive the title was Sir Nicholas Bacon, ther of Sir Francis, afterwards Lord Bacon, and a descendant of that name is still the emier Baronet of England.

BARONETS OF SCOTLAND AND NOVA SCOTIA.—As partly remarked in the preceding ragraph, these date exclusively from the eighty-two years between the institution of e Order and the Union with England in 1707, all later Baronets of Scottish nationality ing Baronets either "of Great Britain" or "of the United Kingdom." This Order as planned by James the First in 1621, its avowed object being to assist the settlement Nova Scotia. This monarch granted a charter of the baronetcy of "New Scotland" Sir William Alexander, afterwards Earl of Stirling; but owing to the King's death e design was left to be carried out by Charles the First in 1625. Sir Robert Gordon, n of the Earl of Sutherland, was Premier Baronet, he having already received from ing James the baronetcy of Galloway in New Scotland (his descendant Sir Robert endonwyn Gordon holding the premier distinction still). To Sir W. Alexander, who as made Lieutenant and Admiral of New Scotland (though it is doubtful whether he er visited it personally), was entrusted the duty of allotting the baronetcies into which ova Scotia was divided. The number of the Order was not to exceed 150, and to each these, on payment of a sum of about £2000, was to be assigned a tract of 6000 acres of good land." No service was required from them, nor was any trouble taken to see at they carried out the scheme of colonisation: the raising of money to the Crown was e one great concern. It is noted that Sir William transferred his own rights and ssessions to a French Huguenot, Claude St. Estienne, Seigneur de la Tour, who ures in a spirited ballad of the poet Whittier's. The Baronets of Scotland, alone of e three, possess a distinctive Badge, consisting in a medal worn from the neck by an ange-tawny ribbon, and containing the ensign of Nova Scotia, the arms of Scotland, d a St. Andrew's Cross (this was granted by Charles the First in 1629, upon the sale of ova Scotia to France, for previously these distinctive designs had been simply charged on their armorial bearings); the crest is a branch of laurel and a thistle issuing from o conjoined hands, the one armed and the other naked, with the motto "Munit hæc altera vincit" (one protects and the other conquers).

BARONETS OF IRELAND.—These all necessarily date from prior to the Union in 1800, er Irish Baronets being of "the United Kingdom." The Order was instituted by mes the First in 1619 for a similar purpose with the English Baronetage of eight years elier: the account given under that order will therefore sufficiently apply. Sir Charles enry Coote is the Premier Baronet of Ireland, his ancestor Sir Charles Coote, Vice- esident of the province of Connaught, having received his patent in 1620, the very first at was granted.

BANNERETS (or KNIGHTS BANNERETS).

THOUGH this order has long gone out of existence it demands notice from its earlier portance, as in its more honourable form it was superior to that of Baronets. It was linarily the reward of merit in the field, and was conferred under the royal standard, by e King himself or the Prince of Wales when present, or by the General in their absence, which last case it ranked inferior to the dignity of a Baronet. The Knight elect was roduced into the presence of the King (or General), having a long pennon on which his ns were painted, when His Majesty "after good words and wishes," commanded the of the said pennon to be cut off so that it might be converted into a four-square banner. This explains the name, and an assurance of the importance of the distinct is conveyed by the fact that no other person below the dignity of a Baron was allowed bear his arms upon a banner. Col. John Smith, who recovered the royal standard Edgehill, was awarded this honour by Charles the First; but a more recent instance its bestowal occurred when George the Third, at a naval review at Portsmouth in 17 made of Admirals Pye and Sprye and Captains Knight, Bickerton, and Vernon, the ve last recipients of the English dignity of Knight Banneret. It was never hereditary this country, though it was so in France.

THE KNIGHTAGE.

General Remarks.—In 'The Book of the Court' we find this note: "It is a curio circumstance that the English name of this degree is almost the only one which does n imply its equestrian nature. For in the French a Knight is styled 'Chevalier' fr cheval, as in German 'Ritter' or rider; or, as an old poet has expressed it—

> "Eques ab equo is said of very right.
> And Chevalier is said of Chivalrie,
> In which a Rider is a Knight;
> Arragoners done also specifie
> Caballiero through all that partie
> Is name of Worship, and so took its 'ginning
> Of Spurs of Gold and chiefly of Riding."

Adding, "From these spurs of gold with which Knights were generally invested th were likewise frequently designated Equites Aurati." The familiar form of the knight chess will occur to every one in this connection. Knighthood in its earlier days pertain only to men of arms, and it has been noted that Sir William Walworth, who appe to have been the first civilian to receive the honour, actually obtained it for performi the military function of slaying Wat Tyler. Henry the Eighth knighted serjeants-at-la and James the First knighted anybody who would pay. The ceremonies of investitu were anciently in part courtly and in part devotional. A feast was held, and rob arms, and spurs were put on; whilst both before and after the conferring of the digni the Knight had to take part in services in the church, comprising a solemn confession vigil, and the sacrament. A sword used then to be girded on, but for this there came be substituted the modern ceremony of the accolade or tap with that weapon by t Sovereign upon the neck and shoulders of the Knight (King James, famed for l awkwardness, was only prevented by the Duke of Buckingham from thrusting the swo during this process into Sir Kenelm Digby's eye). But at one time nobles and ecclesiast also were wont to confer the title, and Kings themselves have received it from such, did Louis the Eleventh from Philip of Burgundy, and Francis the First from Bayar the Knight "sans peur et sans reproche;" and so, in our own country, Brand, Abbot Bury St. Edmunds, knighted Hereward and another, whilst Lanfranc, Archbishop Canterbury, conferred the rank upon William Rufus during the reign of his haugh father. This, however, is one of the many ancient features of Knighthood which mode writers make it their duty to dispute; and if anything is gained by the concession we m allow that very possibly the function was exercised only by such subjects as had receiv from the Sovereign either an official or a special authorisation. Generals in the army h indisputably the power at one period. But the crowning proof of the fact lies in t actual enactment of laws forbidding the bestowal of the honour with the laxity which h evidently been prevailing, and penalties were enforced sometimes both upon giver a recipient when the latter was below the status of a gentleman.

There are with us eight leading Orders of Knighthood—the Garter, the Thistle, S Patrick, the Bath, the Star of India, St. Michael and St. George, the Indian Empi and the Royal Victorian Order, to which we may add Knights Bachelors; also, but wi Companions only and not actual Knights, the Distinguished Service Order and (f Ladies) the Victoria and Albert and the Crown of India. Not one of these is here tary, though Knights of the Garter, even were they only commoners, would take preceden of Baronets. The Orders of the Thistle and St. Patrick have been wholly overlook by the Table of Precedence, but all three are regularly restricted to nobles, the on recorded exceptions being the bestowal of the Garter upon Sir Robert Walpole, and the Thistle upon the Marquess of Lorne and the late Sir William Stirling-Maxwe whilst it has been declared to be "an open secret" that the Garter was offered upon l retirement to Mr. Gladstone, who declined both it and the customary Viscounty. both Burke's and Foster's 'Peerages' the title "Sir" is prefixed to the names of all Pee who are also Knights or Baronets, but this would be very strange if employed in pra tice. Wherever in the Knightage the husband is styled "Sir" the wife, in convention age, has the title "Lady" or "Dame" as in the case of a Baronetess. But in her case e honour is one of courtesy and not of right, and an amusing story in confirmation this distinction is thus told in 'The Book of the Court:' "The lady of a certain City night was once presented to the old Princess Amelia, who was very deaf. The Prin-ss, not aware that she was merely a Knight's lady, was about to salute her as she would ve done with the daughter of a Peer, to the great horror of the Gentleman Usher in aiting, who, shocked at such a violation of etiquette, exclaimed, loud enough to be ard by all present, 'Don't kiss her, Your Royal Highness; she is not a real Lady!'" All of the above Orders have been customarily conferred by the accolade, but the gher ones were often made exceptions, and it is now a frequent course for even a Knight chelorship to be granted by letters-patent.

THE MOST NOBLE ORDER OF THE GARTER.—The commonly accepted date of the titution of this Order is August 1348, or thereabouts; its founder being Edward the ird; it was re-constituted in 1805 and again in 1831. The story of its origin, in one m or other, is familiar to all, and though its authenticity has been gravely doubted, l in detail is certainly very far from reliable, it seems to remain the fact that the ggested alternative does not fit in nearly so well with the sentence of French which s become the renowned motto of the Garter. Mr. Thoms thus narrates it in 'The ok of the Court:' "A vulgar story prevails, but is not supported by any authority, at at a Court ball Edward's mistress, commonly supposed to be the Countess of Salis-ry, dropped her garter; and the King, taking it up, observed some of his courtiers to ile, as if they thought he had not obtained this favour merely by accident, upon which called out, 'Honi soit qui mal y pense!'" The variation of this, which is greatly to preferred, is that it was Edward's own Queen who dropped her garter, and that it s she and not himself who uttered the famous words upon his picking it up, in ponse to his rally as to what would be thought of her for thus losing her garter in blic. The further incident is appended that Edward then placed the garter round his n knee by way of rebuke to those who "saw harm" in it, and that the occurrence s grew famous, and the garter came to be adopted as the battle-signal at Crecy. The er story—wholly divergent from either of the above—is that Richard Cœur de Lion ring the Crusades once adopted a white leathern strap below the left knee to distinguish own soldiers from infidels during a night assault—a theory which would place the gin of the Order a century and a half earlier. But there are two very obvious ections to this as the true origin, though it may in itself have been a real historical nt. In the first place there is the colour of the garter, which appears to have been ays blue—only sky-blue in earlier years, but never white, which evidently during this ht attack was its most essential feature. And secondly, this story fails to account the motto, for how any scandal could attach either to the leathern strap or to the ht assault we have not even a suggestion to help us in determining. But the strious Sir Harris Nicolas gives as a translation of the motto, "May he be dis-oured who thinks ill of it," adding "i.e., the expedition to France." This hints at ie third original for the Order; but here again we want explanation as to why any , in those days at least, should "think ill" of a grand warlike expedition. But ugh mistrusting this application, we must all admit without hesitation that Sir rris's translation itself is far more correct than the one commonly received, which ; ignores the "y" for the sake of making out a proverb applicable to anything or ning, and then, to give it an epigrammatical turn, repeats the word "evil" without warrant from the original. The word "honi," which in modern French would be nni," is not even a noun at all but a participle (from "honnir," a verb used only in passive and in the sense of "vilipender," but with an added force of excited indigna- which makes its employment here literally a curse). "Execrated be he who harm in the Garter" is evidently the intent of the words, unless we substitute cursed" or "held infamous," for there is much of the force of them all in "honi" Harris's "dishonoured" is far too feeble).

he Order itself may be said to rank indisputably as the first in the world, and the ıber of foreign Sovereigns who have accepted it is almost countless, though it is ed that English monarchs have rarely cared to receive any foreign Order. It is only ferred upon those who for at least three generations upon both their fathers' and hers' sides have been gentlemen and free from dishonour of any kind. It was nerly limited to twenty-five Knight Companions, with the Sovereign and the Prince Vales, and such occasional extra Knights and foreign rulers and dignitaries as ht be admitted by special statute, the "extras" being merged in the regular five-and-twenty upon the first occurrence of vacancies. The "lineal descendants of Ki George the Second" were added in 1805, and this in 1831 was extended to those of Geor the First. A Knight of the Garter used at his investiture to be allotted a stall in S George's Chapel at Windsor, over which was set up, to be retained throughout his li his sword, helmet, crest, banner, and a plate containing his arms and titles: this practi was still in vogue at the date of Thoms's 'Book of the Court,' though instances in 18 are mentioned of its being dispensed with. The ceremony of the accolade may be a considered to have ceased so far as the three noble Orders are concerned.

The officers of the Order are—Prelate, the Bishop of Winchester; Chancellor, t Bishop of Oxford (formerly Salisbury); Registrar, the Dean of Windsor—all three officio; besides these are Garter King of Arms, usually called "Garter," and the Gent man Usher of the Black Rod—these two being personal appointments. The Prelate a Chancellor are authorised to wear upon their left side a scutcheon of the arms of S George; the latter wears also a gold medal enamelled on the one side with a rose and the other with a St. George, both encircled with the garter. The Registrar has a man of crimson satin with an escutcheon of St. George's arms embroidered on the l shoulder; and on his breast he wears a red book of the Order with a device of two pe within the garter. The mantle of "Garter" himself is similar, and he wears a g medal enamelled with the Sovereign's arms, impaled with the Cross of St. Georg surrounded with the garter, and surmounted by a crown. Like other Kings of Arms has a crown of silver and gilt, figured in sixteen oak-leaves. Black Rod again has similar mantle, his Rod is surmounted by the Lion of England, and he wears before l breast a gold badge composed on both sides of a knot encompassed with the garter a motto. He is granted during life a house on the south side within Windsor Cast whilst the Prelate and Chancellor have apartments respectively in the Winchester a Chancellor's Towers of the same.

The decorations of the Knights of the Order constitute a most elaborate and imposi array, comprising the Garter, Mantle, Surcoat, Star, Hood, Hat, Collar, George, Les George, and Ribbon. First, the Garter itself (worn below the left knee), of dark bl velvet edged with gold, the motto in golden letters, and the buckle and pendant of chas gold (those awarded to foreign Sovereigns have been most richly gemmed, that sent to G tavus Adolphus having the motto composed of some four hundred diamonds). Second comes the Mantle, which is of dark blue velvet lined with white taffeta (this is the man worn by Sovereigns upon state occasions, the regal distinction lying in the extra length the train). Thirdly we have the Surcoat, of crimson velvet, lined like the Mantle a adorned like it upon the left breast with an eight-pointed silver-embroidered Star, with which is the Red Cross of St. George, the whole encircled by a miniature blue gart After these come the Hood, resembling the Surcoat in colour and material, and the H which is of black velvet and surmounted by a plume attached by diamonds and compos of white ostrich feathers with a central tuft of black ones from the heron. Then there the Collar, which is constructed of twenty-six circular medals of gold fastened togeth by chains exactly in the manner of the circles in our title-page; each medal has for border a garter with its motto, and for its interior a rose, alternately white and re between each medal and the next is a true lover's knot, formed of gold and enamell white. The twenty-six "garters" (we here call them medals only for the sake of cle ness, as the idea of twenty-six garters round the neck might be too suggestive strangulation) correspond to the number of the Order—the Sovereign and Knig Companions; the entire Collar weighs exactly thirty-two ounces. Suspended to th Collar over the breast is the Badge or George, an image of that saint encountering t Dragon; the Lesser George, which is similar, is attached to the broad dark blue Ribb of the Order, passing over the left shoulder and crossing obliquely to beneath the rig arm. Designation of the Order the appended letters K.G.

The Most Ancient and Most Noble Order of the Thistle.—The Scottish Or of the Thistle is reputed to be of very remote origin: Foster's 'Peerage' assigns it A.D. 787, and it is said to have taken its beginning from the vision of a bright cross in t heavens seen by Achaius, King of Scots, and Hungus, King of the Picts, as they w engaged in prayer in the night before their battle with Athelstan, King of Englan What element of truth there may be in this story no one can now confidently sta What is historical is that in the year 1540 James the Fifth either established or revi the Order, and that it had again to be restored in 1687 by James the Seventh of Scotla and Second of England, who created eight Knights and assigned to them the royal cha at Holyrood, which is still the chapel of the Order. Once more the order collaps rough the Revolution of the following year, but on December 31, 1703, it was again id more permanently established by Queen Anne. In 1827 it was decreed that its embership should comprise the Sovereign and sixteen Knights, but other personages the Royal Family have since been added. Its officials are the Dean, the Secretary, yon King of Arms, and the Gentleman Usher of the Green Rod. The decorations con-st of the Badge or Jewel, the Star, the Collar, and the Ribbon. The Badge is in the rm of a somewhat elongated eight-pointed star, and is charged with a gold enamelled gure of St. Andrew holding before him his own cross: it is worn either pendent to ie Collar or attached to the dark green Ribbon of the Order, which passes over the left oulder and across the breast. The Star, properly so called, is itself formed in part of a . Andrew's Cross of silver embroidery, between the four limbs of which are four starry ys, the centre being occupied by a thistle (blue flower with green foliage), which is rrounded by a circle with the motto, "Nemo me impune lacessit" (No one provokes e with impunity): this is worn on the left side of the coat or cloak. The Collar is mposed of a series of golden thistles alternating with sprigs of rue. Designation, the tters K.T.

THE MOST ILLUSTRIOUS ORDER OF ST. PATRICK.—This, the leading Order of Ireland the Thistle is of Scotland, was instituted by George the Third in 1783. The number Knight Companions was originally fifteen, but was increased in 1833 to twenty-two, addition to the Sovereign, the Lord Lieutenant (as Grand Master), and some members the Royal Family. All Lord Lieutenants on retirement retain the insignia, but not e ex-officio knighthood. There was formerly a religious ceremony attached to the vestiture, but this was abolished on the disestablishment of the Irish Church, in con-rmity with which event the offices of Prelate and Registrar have lapsed, whilst the hancellor, instead of being an Archbishop, is now the Secretary for Ireland of the inistry of the day. The other officers are the Ulster King of Arms, the Secretary, the sher of the Black Rod (Ireland), and the Genealogist. The decorations consist of the adge, Star, Collar, and Ribbon. The Badge and Star have each of them in the centre a . Patrick's Cross in red surmounted by a green leaf of Shamrock, each lobe of which is arged with an Imperial Crown; around this is a circle with a motto in gold letters, Quis separabit?" (Who shall separate us?); surrounding this again there is in the adge, which is of gold, a wreath of Shamrocks confining the whole within an oval out-ie, whilst in the Star there are eight spreading rays of silver: these two ornaments are orn as under the previous Orders. The Collar is wholly of gold and made up of a series five roses, two harps, and an Imperial Crown, alternating with eight golden knots, the ses being enamelled alternately white petals within red and red within white; whilst e crown, which occupies the front centre, has attached to it a third and much larger rp forming the connecting-link between the Collar and Badge (the other two harps are the sides, the roses three behind and two in front, the crown taking in this last position e place of the centre one). The Ribbon is sky-blue. Designation, the letters K.P.

THE MOST HONOURABLE ORDER OF THE BATH.—The name of this, by far the largest our Orders of Knighthood and the highest in honour of those to which commoners can pe to attain, was evidently taken from an initiatory ceremony of bathing. If it is too ich to assert that the Order itself was founded in 1399, and though Sir Bernard Burke ay be perfectly correct in the statement that no "Order" existed at that date, it pears historically true that Henry the Fourth did, on his coronation in that year, nfer a distinguished knightly honour upon forty-six gentlemen who underwent a series forms upon the occasion, of which ablution was a principal item. Thus we may y at least that the Order appears to have had its germ as early as 1399, though it was t till 1725 that it was placed upon a solid foundation; since that date it has received ccessive enlargements in 1815, 1847, 1861, and 1887. The account given of Henry the ourth's Knights and of their evident successors is interesting and apposite enough to be esented here in some detail. The earliest chronicler of the subject is Froissart, who ls us of the King giving his Knights "long green coats, the sleeves whereof were cut raight and furred with minever, and with great hoods or chaperons furred in the same anner, and after the fashion used by prelates; and every one of these Knights on his t shoulder had a double cordon, or string of white silk, to which white tassels were ndent.". On the evening previous to their investiture they were all assembled, we are t told where, and each of them had his separate chamber and bath, the rites of the ter having to be duly performed that night. This ceremony, however, as was shown by Mr. Anstis in a quarto volume upon the subject published in 1725—the year whe the Order took a more definite form—was observed at the creation of Knights muc earlier still than the time of Henry the Fourth. Thus the actual original of our Orde becomes "lost in the mists of antiquity," and we are glad to be able to supplemen Froissart's account by a more definite one of apparently the same "Order" as describe on the occasion of the investiture of a number of Knights in 1610, when Prince Henry son of James the First, was created Prince of Wales. The "Lords and others who wer to receive the Honourable Order of the Bath" were bidden to repair to Durham Hous in the Strand, there to undergo a whole course of ceremonial observances. Burk assures us that Knights of the Bath "were only Knights Bachelors knighted with mor elaborate ceremony," and if we accept this view as to the occasion in question they the become an Order within an Order, so that really there appears little force in the nega tion. To return to our "Lords and others," noting by the way that the Order of th Bath was at that period habitually bestowed on state occasions upon such of the flowe of the nobility as had received no other Order of Knighthood. These Knights-designat were conducted in the evening to the bathing-chamber, "where for each of them wa provided a several bathing-tub, which was lined both within and without with whit linen and covered with red say. After the bath they betook themselves to rest. Earl the next morning they were awakened with music, and at their uprising in vested in their hermit's habit." So attired and without shoes they were brough into the chapel, where a solemn oath was administered to them to "honour God an maintain true religion, love their Sovereign, serve their country, help maidens, widows and orphans, and to the utmost of their power cause equity and justice to be observed. After this they were invested in crimson robes, with white gloves, white boots, whit crosses, and white hats with white feathers, and they then mounted on horseback, eac Knight between two esquires, with footmen attending, and a page in front carrying th sword and spurs. In this array they rode to the Court gate, and there individually (th highest in rank first) entered the hall and knelt before the King, to whom the sword c each was handed, when he passed the belt over the neck of the Knight and so placed th sword under the left arm; two principal nobles then put on the spurs. All being con cluded, they returned to Durham House, where a dinner was set before them which the were forbidden to touch, but to leave to their esquires and pages. In the afternoon the returned fasting to Court and passed a long service in the King's chapel. On makin their exit they were met by the King's cook, "who stood there with his white apron an sleeves, and a chopping-knife in his hand, and challenged their spurs, which wer redeemed with a noble in money, threatening them nevertheless that if they should no be true and loyal to the King, it must be his office to hew them from their heels." Th above, with much further detail, gives us an insight into the early usages as well as th significance of the Order; it is culled from a paper preserved by Mr. Anstis which pu ports to give the proceedings as observed "according to the order given from the Com missioners appointed for the oversight of these ceremonies." We pass to 1725, whe George the First, at the suggestion of Sir Robert Walpole, renewed the Order an decreed that it should consist of thirty-seven Knights and the Sovereign. It was i 1815, however, upon the close of the long wars, that it was greatly enlarged and modelle almost into its present arrangement with its three Classes, but only the highest of thes comprised as yet a Civil Division, and this limited to one-sixth of the total of the Clas In 1847 it was again enlarged, the Civil Division being extended to the other two Classe and increased in numbers in the first of these. Eventually the numbers were fixed a stated below, but these are exclusive of the Royal Family and of such distinguishe foreigners as may be admitted Honorary Members of either Division or Class: even the there is a laxity permitted as to the precise numbers, as supernumerary members ca always be admitted by the temporary use of the word "Additional" (and so with th Orders generally). It must also be particularly noted that great numbers of militar men are found under the Civil Division, on account of their services having been of scientific or other non-military character; a few have obtained both Divisions.

The officers are the Dean (the Dean of Westminster), the Bath King of Arms, th Registrar and Secretary, and the Gentleman Usher of the Scarlet Rod. As a rul though not without exceptions, recipients of this Order must begin with the lowest Clas or Companions, and so through Knights Commanders before they can become Gran Crosses. The Military Division of even the lowest rank is only conferred upon distin tion in action against the enemy, and never upon any officer of lower grade than that Major in the Army or Commander in the Navy.

The decorations of the Order consist of the Badge, Star, Collar, and Ribbon. Th

Badge for the Military Division is a (genuine) Maltese Cross of gold with eight silver enamelled balls upon the points and within each of the four principal angles a lion; in the central circle are a rose, thistle, and shamrock issuing from a sceptre, with three Albert Crowns interspersed (crowns with four arches); in the border is the motto, "Tria juncta in uno" (Three joined in one), with a laurel-wreath completely surrounding it, whilst in a scroll beneath are the words "Ich dien" (I serve): by the Grand Crosses this is worn pendent from the Collar, by the Knights Commanders from the Ribbon, and by Companions from the button-hole. The Badge of the Civil Division is also of gold, and in the centre is similar to the above but larger (decreasing however with the three classes), and it is oval and without the surrounding cross and lions. The Star is of silver, and for the Grand Crosses of the Military Division resembles the Badge as to the cross, laurel-wreath, and mottoes, but has simply three Imperial Crowns in the central space, being externally surrounded with a glory of silver flames; for the Civil Grand Crosses there is the same centre, but an eight-rayed star in lieu of flames, cross, and wreath; for the Knights Commanders there is a silver cross-pattée round the same centre, the Military Division alone taking the laurel-wreath and the scroll. The Collar of the Grand Crosses, both Civil and Military, is of gold and weighs thirty ounces Troy; it is composed of nine Albert Crowns alternating with eight combinations of roses, thistles, and shamrocks, the whole series being linked together by seventeen golden knots. The Ribbon is red, and worn over the right shoulder by Grand Crosses, but round the neck by Knights Commanders, who utilise it in place of the Collar for suspension of the Badge; Companions have neither Collar nor Star, and suspend the Badge from the button-hole. On high state occasions the Knights wear a crimson surcoat and red mantle, vest and breeches of white satin, white stockings and shoes, golden spurs, and high-crowned hat with a plume of white feathers. The designations with the nominal limiting numbers are as under (these numbers being at the present date all exceeded, with the exception of the 690 Military C.B.'s):—

The Most Exalted Order of the Star of India.—We are now brought down to a very modern date, for the Order next in precedence after the Bath was constituted by her present Majesty in 1861, being subsequently enlarged successively in 1866, 1875, and 1876. Its purpose is to reward services in and for India, and to recognise the loyalty of friendly native rulers and chiefs. It consists of the Sovereign, the Governor-General of India as Grand Master, some 250 Knights and Companions disposed in three classes as below, and such extra and Honorary Members as the Sovereign may from time to time appoint. The officers are the Registrar and the Secretary, and the decorations the Badge, Star, Collar, Ribbon, and Mantle. The Badge is an onyx cameo of Her Majesty's bust set in an oval and surrounded with the motto "Heaven's Light our Guide;" it is surmounted by a five-rayed star wholly in diamonds, which forms the connecting-link with the Collar. The Star proper has in its centre a smaller star like the preceding, with the same encircling motto, also in diamonds, and around the whole a glory of golden flames. The Collar is of gold, and adorned, enamelled in their proper colours, with an Heraldic Crown, five red-and-white roses, six lotuses, and ten pairs of palm branches. The Ribbon is sky-blue with a narrow white stripe towards each edge, and is worn by Grand Commanders over the right shoulder, crossing to the left; by Knights Commanders round the neck, as with the preceding Order; Companions attach the Badge by it to the left breast. The Mantle is of light blue satin lined with white and adorned with blue and silver tassels and a representation of the Star. Designations and limits:—

The Most Distinguished Order of St. Michael and St. George.—Though nearly older than the preceding this Order has been placed after it in dignity, the great importance of India being thereby signified to outweigh that of the other Colonies—the department with which the present Order is concerned. It was originally established, in 1818, to commemorate the placing of the Ionian Islands under the protectorate of Great Britain. It was thus limited at first to natives of these islands and of Malta, and to such other subjects of His Majesty as may hold high and confidential situations in the Mediterranean." In 1832 its three Classes were fixed at the numbers of fifteen, twenty and twenty-five respectively; but it was enlarged successively in 1868, 1877, 1879, and 1887, till it has come to be assignable to any person who has rendered valuable service in either Colonial or Foreign Affairs. It now comprises the Sovereign, the Grand Master or Principal Knight Grand Cross, a number of Royal Princes, with possible extra or Honorary Members, and the regular Knights as below. Its officers are the Prelate, Chancellor, Secretary, King of Arms, and Registrar: the Colonial Office is its Chancery. The decorations are the Badge, Star, Collar, Ribbon, Mantle, and Chapeau. The Badge is white enamelled and resembling a Maltese Cross but with seven arms instead of four; on one side it represents the Archangel Michael encountering Satan, and on the other St. George and the Dragon; around each of these designs is the motto "Auspicium melioris ævi" (The token of a better age); above the whole Badge is a crown attaching it to the Collar. The Star of a Knight Grand Cross consists of seven rays of silver spreading in the manner of a Maltese Cross, and with narrow ones of gold between, while in the centre is the figure of St. George with the motto, and the extremities of the four arms of a cross protruding from beneath this central circle. That of Knights Commanders is smaller and of only four rays. The collar is made up of crowned lions (the two in the front having wings), Maltese Crosses, and ciphers of the letters S. M. and S. G., with a crown in the front centre slightly within the circle: all gold except the crosses, which are of white enamel. The Ribbon is of Saxon blue with a scarlet stripe, and is worn by the three classes with the same variations as under the Bath. The Mantle and Chapeau are of blue satin lined with scarlet silk, the latter surmounted with white and black ostrich feathers. The following are the designations (which it will be observed accord with those of the Order of the Bath in the use of the term "Grand Cross," while the two Indian Orders substitute "Grand Commanders"):—

The Most Eminent Order of the Indian Empire.—The Order so entitled was instituted by her present Majesty so recently as January 1, 1878, and for the purpose of commemorating her proclamation in the previous year as Empress of India. It is awarded for a like purpose with the Order of the Star of India, though inferior to it in the scale of precedence. In 1886 it was enlarged, and again at the Jubilee in 1887. It now consists of the Sovereign, the Governor-General (as Grand Master), some members of the Royal Family, and the usual three classes besides extras, whilst there exists the special proviso that all Councillors of the Indian Empire are life Companions ex officio. Till 1887 it consisted of Companions only, but the two higher classes were added in that year. Its officers are the Secretary (who is the Foreign Secretary of the Indian Government for the time being) and the Registrar. The decorations are the Badge, Star, Collar, Ribbon, and Mantle. The Badge, which is wholly of gold, consists of an open red rose with Her Majesty's effigy in the centre surrounded by the motto "Imperatricis auspiciis" ("Under the auspices of the Empress"—at first it was "Victoria Imperatrix"): above the rose is an Heraldic Crown connecting the Badge with a similar but larger crown in the Collar. The Star, for the First Class, has its centre like that of the Badge, but with the crown immediately surmounting, and is surrounded with alternate gold and silver rays; for the Second Class these rays are all silver. The Collar, worn by the First Class only, is of gold, and is made up of the crown in front with a pair of chains linking together a series of elephants, peacocks, and lotus-flowers. The Ribbon is of imperial blue and is worn with the same variations as under the Bath, &c., Companions attaching the Badge by it to the left breast. The Mantle is of purple satin lined with white silk and fastened with purple silk and gold tassels: on its left a representation of the Star. Designations:—

The Royal Victorian Order.—This last of our Orders of Knighthood, which dates only from April 21, 1896, is specially designed as a recognition of personal services to Her Majesty, and may thus be regarded as the revival of a project started several years ago, but carried, we believe, no further than its bestowal upon the late Mr. John Brown. It has the distinctive feature of comprising no less than five Classes, of which the 1st is to take precedence after G.C.I.E., the 2nd and 3rd after K.C.I.E., the 4th after C.I.E., and the 5th after D.S.O. It will thus be observed that a C.V.O., though not a Knight but having the style "Commander," is superior to C.B.'s. and even to Knights Bachelors. Any foreign members (Princes or others) are to be Honorary only. It has its appointed Anniversary on June 20, the day of Her Majesty's accession. Its officers are the Chancellor and Secretary, who are respectively the Lord Chamberlain of the Household and the Keeper of the Privy Purse for the time being. The decorations are the Badge, Star, and Ribbon. The Badge, for the 1st Class, is a white enamelled Maltese Cross with a crimson oval in the centre containing the royal and imperial cipher and the name "Victoria," all in gold letters, and the name surrounded by a blue circle surmounted by a crown; for the 2nd and 3rd Classes it is similar but smaller, and for the 4th smaller still; for the 5th it is the size of the 4th, but with the cross in frosted silver instead of white enamel. The Star for the 1st class is silver chipped, with eight points, and having a smaller reproduction of the Badge in its centre; for the 2nd Class it is in the form of a Maltese Cross in silver but with smaller rays, and having the reproduced Badge in frosted silver instead of enamel: it is not worn by the three lower Classes. The Ribbon is of dark blue with a narrow edging of three stripes—red, white, and red again; for the 1st Class it is 3¾ ins. broad and worn from over the right shoulder to below the left arm, having the Badge suspended to it; for the 2nd and 3rd classes it is 1¾ ins. broad and worn round the neck; for the 4th and 5th it is 1¼ ins. broad and attached to the left breast. The numbers of all the Classes are unlimited, and the following are the designations:—

[The Royal Hanoverian Guelphic Order.—This Order, though it has ceased to be conferred in this country since the death of William the Fourth, was instituted in 1815 by the then Prince Regent to commemorate the establishment of Hanover as a Kingdom, and was formerly far more British than Hanoverian. It had its complete array of decorations, with the motto "Nec aspera terrent" (Nor do difficulties dismay us). The following are its designations with its only surviving British representatives:—

G.C.H. (Knight Grand Cross of Hanover)—Fd. Marsh. H.R.H. the Duke of Cambridge.
" " H.R.H. the Duke of Cumberland.
K.C.H. (Knight Commander of Hanover—last, Sir Woodbine Parish, who died 1881).
K.H. (Knight of Hanover—corresponding to Companions and not entitled "Sir").

Baron von Pawel-Rammingen, though not strictly English, may be cited as the last of the K.H.'s in this country]

Knights Bachelors.—In the stricter use of the term these do not constitute an 'Order," though the phrase "the Order of Knighthood" is met with as including all Knights whatsoever. There was a time in earlier English history when this was the only form of Knighthood existing, for the remotest conceivable date of origin of the Order of the Bath will not bring it anywhere near to the time of King Alfred, who certainly made a Knight of his nephew Athelstan. The Order of Bannerets would run it closer in the struggle for antiquity, and it is usually held that the word "Bachelor" in this usage is a corruption of "bas chevalier," as implying a lower rank of Knights than those who received the honour under the royal banner. As the more definite Orders came gradually into being, Knights Bachelors naturally became of still lower account; nevertheless, as it was from this Order that these others took their rise, we have placed under the preceding "General Remarks" a few sentences on the early customs of Knighthood which doubtless relate primarily to Knights Bachelors alone. Mention was here made of the systematic sale of this and other honours by James the First, who during the second year of his reign created 300 Knights. In the case of this degree he even outdid his achievements in the sale of Baronetcies, till we are told that a satirical placard was affixed to the door of St. Paul's Cathedral offering to teach a new art of memory to enable people to bear in mind the names of the newly-created title-bearers, and the King himself became so humiliated by his own doings that upon one occasion when the new Knight showed embarrassment at his own lack of prestige, James exclaimed, "Hold up your head, man, and spare your blushes; I have more cause to be ashamed than you have." A rather back-handed piece of consolation surely!

A few centuries earlier the Knight, like the Baron, was a part of the feudal system, and the possession of a Knight's fee or of a certain small amount of land not only gave a claim to but allowed no escape from the title. Still though it might be a burden it was an honour usually sought with avidity. But when under the Stuarts the honour was degraded as above, while the ancient requirement to provide troops for the King was still maintained, the Knights-designate were often glad to second their tenants in the effort to obtain excuse from the promotion, submitting in its stead, the one to pay large sums of indemnity and the others to submit to special levies of taxation. In the treaty at Newport between Charles the First and his Parliament it was agreed that the King should receive in place of the knightly service a tax of £100,000 a year upon the relieved lands; and by the 12th of Charles the Second an excise on beer and other drinks was substituted and the service wholly abolished—the populace gladly accepting this burden in place of some sixty days per year for which they had hitherto been obliged to go with the troops.

A story of antipathy to knightly honours, though resting upon a rather different ground, may here be introduced from the reign of George the Fourth. A Norfolk M.P. who prided himself upon being a simple commoner, and who had distinguished himself by a somewhat violent denunciation of this monarch's father, was once entrusted by his constituents with an address to the throne. This address was no more agreeable to the King than was the presence of the democratic representative, so His Majesty roundly desired that he would never come before him with such a document again. "If my constituents entrust it to me for that purpose it will be my duty to present it to Your Majesty," replied the imperturbable one. "Very well," said the King, "but remember, if you do, by G—— I'll knight you!"

The designation of a Knight Bachelor is the simple prefix Sir (it is permissible to add "Knight" or "Kt.," but this is not usual). There is no decoration attached, and no limit to the numbers.

The Distinguished Service Order.—In this and the two following Orders we may be said to have Knighthood without Knights, the members being Companions only. It is ordained that the present Order is to rank immediately after the 4th Class of the Royal Victorian, the sequence of Companions thus becoming—C.B., C.S.I., C.M.G., C.I.E., M.V.O. 4th Class, D.S.O., M.V.O. 5th Class. The Order under notice was instituted by her present Majesty in 1886, its purpose being the recognition of special services of commissioned officers in the Army and Navy. The Sovereign is at its head and its numbers are unlimited. Its Badge is a gold cross enamelled white, one side bearing an Heraldic Crown surrounded by a wreath of laurels; on the reverse side the cipher VRI (Victoria Regina Imperatrixque) within a similar wreath: this is worn attached to the left breast by a red ribbon edged blue. Designation, the letters D.S.O.

The Royal Order of Victoria and Albert (for Ladies).—Instituted in 1862, and enlarged in 1864, 1865, and 1880. It consists of Her Majesty and four Classes, of which the First contains Princesses of the Royal Family with some foreign Queens, the Second of Royal Princesses and Duchesses less nearly connected with our Royal Family, and the Third and Fourth of ladies of the British nobility of higher or lower rank. Badge in the first three Classes a medallion of Her Majesty and the Prince Consort, differing in the width and jewelling of the border as the Classes descend, whilst the fourth substitutes a jewelled cipher. All four are surmounted by some form of a crown which is attached to a bow of white moire ribbon. Designation, the letters V.A.

The Imperial Order of the Crown of India (for Ladies).—Instituted Jan. 1, 1878, and for a like purpose with the simultaneously created Order of the Indian Empire. It consists of Her Majesty with some Royal Princesses, and the female relatives of Indian Princes or of persons who have held conspicuous offices in connection with India. Badge the cipher VRI (Victoria Regina Imperatrixque) in jewels within an oval, surmounted by an Heraldic Crown and attached to a bow of light blue watered ribbon edged white. Designation, the letters C.I.

There are certain Decorations which, though in no sense Orders of Knighthood, and conferring no rank or precedence, are still held in sufficient estimation to claim a notice in sequence to the above.

The Victoria Cross (V.C.) was instituted in 1856, on the close of the Crimean War, as a recognition of conspicuous acts of bravery in presence of the enemy displayed by ther soldiers or sailors. It was designed primarily for the rank and file and non-ommissioned officers, but it is held also by all grades up to Field-Marshals and Admirals the Fleet, whilst by a special provision it was extended to civilians who had borne ms against the Indian mutineers. Conjoined with the decoration is the substantial ward of a pension of £10 per annum and an additional £5 for each Bar, as immediately be explained. The Badge consists in a cross-pattée of bronze, having in the centre an nperial Crown, surmounted by a lion and beneath it a scroll with the words "For alour." Any additional act of bravery is noted by a Bar being affixed to the ribbon om which the cross hangs, it being suspended to the left breast, whilst the ribbon is d for the Army and blue for the Navy. The cross is usually styled "Maltese," but, cording to the note on page 2 this must be incorrect, for its four arms are not cleft the ends as they are in the decorations of the Bath, St. Michael and St. George, and ıe Royal Victorian. Though instituted in 1856 some of the original recipients are gistered as from 1854, the date being that of the act by which the honour was earned.

The Volunteer Officers' Decoration (V.D.) is an honour for rewarding he ieritorious services of officers of the force in question, who must be or have been in ommission and have served twenty years, though a provision is made allowing half the me spent in other military service to be counted in making up this term. Dishonour-ble conduct is to entail the erasure of the name and a publication of the fact in the Gazette." The Badge is an oak wreath in silver with the cipher VR and an Heraldic rown in the centre; it is suspended to the left breast by a green ribbon attached to a lver oak bar-brooch.

The Albert Medal dates from 1866, with extensions in 1867 and 1877, and is a cognition of acts of gallantry performed by civilians, who are placed in two Divisions ıe one receiving a Badge inscribed "For Gallantry in Saving Life at Sea;" the other ith the closing words varied to "on Land." Each Division has now two Classes, the ne receiving a Badge with a golden centre and a bronze garter around it, the other one holly in bronze. All the Badges are oval, surmounted by an Albert Crown and ontaining in the central space the cipher VA, to which in the Sea Division an anchor added. The suspending ribbon in this same Division is of dark blue, with four white ripes in the First Class and two in the Second; in the Land Division it is crimson with ıe same variations in white stripes. An added Bar, as under the Victoria Cross, cords an additional act of gallantry.

The Royal Red Cross (R.R.C.—for Ladies), founded 1883, is a distinction conferred pon ladies of any rank or position, whether subjects or foreigners, who may be brought Her Majesty's notice for acts of mercy in attending to the sick or wounded in time of ar. It has the Queen and several Royal Princesses at its head. Badge, a cross-pattée namelled crimson with Her Majesty's effigy in the centre on one side, on the reverse ıe cipher VRI, and on the four arms respectively the words "Faith," "Hope," Charity," "1883." The ribbon is dark blue edged red, tied in a bow and worn on the ft shoulder.

The Order of St. John of Jerusalem.—Though conferring no title or other mark f distinction, this Order must not be here passed without recognition. It took its origin ı the century of the Norman Conquest, and by about 1100 it was established in ngland, making its headquarters the Priory of St. John in Clerkenwell, of which the ncient gateway still remains; the Sisters of the Order were located at Bucklands in omersetshire. It began as a voluntary confraternity for the relief of pilgrims to erusalem, and a similar object has all along been kept before it, taking present xpression in offshoots such as the St. John's Ambulance Association and the British phthalmic Hospital at Jerusalem. A new British charter was granted it by Her Majesty in 1888, its full title being therein given as "The Grand Priory of the Hospital f St. John of Jerusalem in England." For its officers and its various classes we must efer to page 111 of the Almanack; it also admits Honorary Associates. Its Badge is a rue Maltese Cross with alternately a lion and a unicorn between the branches; it is of old or silver according to the grade, and is worn suspended from a black watered silk ibbon. Its medal, with a device like that of the Badge upon one side and a sprig of St. ohn's wort upon the other, is conferred for acts of gallantry involving risk of life. The Order was once known as "The Knights of Malta" (hence the Maltese Cross), it aving long settled in that island after migrating from Jerusalem to Acre and thence to Rhodes.

PRECEDENCE.

THE relative positions of the various grades have formed the subject of legal ena ments from a very early period, the first apparently having been decreed in the reign Edward the Third in the year 1339. After this we meet with a statute passed unc Henry the Seventh and a more important one in the 31st year of Henry the Eigh which has since been looked upon as the primary authority on the subject, though it w little more than a conferring of legal force upon the practices then current. Seve acts of less account have followed, mostly in reference to questions of special controve or doubt. Many striking omissions occur in the table, there being no recognition of t high office of Prime Minister nor of the leading military and naval commande Precedence as a rule can only be derived through a father, or, in the case of a wi through her husband; the only exception being that a Peeress in her own right c confer it upon her offspring. Men possessing two claims to precedence, a personal a an official one, will be ranked according to whichever of these is the higher: y this preference of the higher is not the invariable system, for if the son of a Duke, f instance, is summoned to the House of Lords in a Barony of his father's his rank fort with sinks to that of a Baron. The children of a living Peer or Baronet rank befo those of his predecessor, as they themselves will have the prior claim to succeed. dignity which is exclusively official—as that of the Spiritual Peers and the Scotti Lords of Session—confers no precedence whatever upon the children, but those of fully constituted Life Peer will rank as Barons' sons, though none of them can inhe the title nor be styled "Honourable." The offspring of different Peers (or others) the same rank will naturally be arranged in the order of their fathers—i.e., according the dates of their patents. No foreign title confers any precedence in England, b veritable Ambassadors rank before all except the Royal Family, while "Envoys a Foreign Ministers" have latterly been placed, 'Burke' tells us, between Dukes a Marquesses.

Knights of the Garter are placed nominally after Barons' eldest sons, but practically hey take a place far above Barons themselves. For the same reason the total omission f Knights of the Thistle and St. Patrick is not of the slightest consequence. We have mitted all three of these, as also three or four offices which are now non-existent. At ıe close may be safely appended "Professional Gentlemen," "Yeomen," "Citizens," Burgesses." In University Precedence the grades of the four "Doctors" just above are)llowed by the Bachelors of the same faculties, then by Masters of Arts, and lastly achelors of Arts. For Relative Ranks of Army and Navy, see page 188 of the LMANACK.

Precedence among Ladies.

As a first general rule the rank of ladies is that of their husbands if married and of ıeir eldest brothers if single; but there are many special instances. Our Note upon ıe Marriage of Peeresses and others at the close of the division "The Peerage and its egrees," comprehends much that is applicable to our subject here. It must be added ıat the wife of an eldest son takes precedence over all daughters, but these in their turn ıve priority over the wives of younger sons. A dowager lady again (not necessarily styled, see p. 43) ranks higher than the wife of the living Peer or Baronet, because, hilst the younger cannot possibly succeed to the title, the elder comes the nearer to the iginal holder—a rule thus resulting which is the opposite to that observed in the cases children, wherein those of the living Peer or Baronet take precedence on account of arness to the future succession. The mere official rank of the husband as a rule nfers no dignity whatever upon his wife; but even here there are exceptions in cases here the wives have a species of public duties to perform, as those of a Lady Mayoress ıd the wife of a Lord Lieutenant of Ireland. The following is the order observed :—

The Queen.
The Princess of Wales.

Local Precedence.

There is little of a general character that need here be noted. The person highest in ık in a county is the Lord Lieutenant, after whom comes the High Sheriff. In ndon the order is—Lord Mayor, Sheriff, Aldermen, Lieutenants, Recorder, Common ɛjeant, Chamberlain, Town Clerk, &c. In other corporate towns we have the Mayor ɛt unless there is a High Steward, then the Recorder, Sheriff, and Aldermen. At ford and Cambridge the Sheriff takes precedence of the Vice-Chancellor.

BARON.—"My Lord," "Your Lordship," "The Right Hon. Lord A." Baroness, "Madam," "Your Ladyship," "The Right Hon. Lady A." The term "My Lady" is relegated to servants and even "The Right Hon." is usually cut do to "The Lady A." (no Christian name). Son daughter, "Sir," or "Madam," "The Hon. C. D." Son's wife, "The Hon. Mrs. D." or "Mrs. J D." (unless her own rank is higher, in which c see Note on "Marriage of Peeresses, &c.," p. 19, and address accordingly.

BARONET.—"Sir" ("Dear Sir Thomas" rather too familiar to be used by inferiors). " T. A., Bart." Wife, "Madam," "Your La ship," "Lady A." (without any Christian na unless she is a Lady by birth, as daughter o Duke, Marquess, or Earl, in which case "L Mary A.;" if daughter of a Viscount or Ba "The Hon. Lady A."). Son or daughter commoners.

BISHOP.—"My Lord," "Your Lordship," " Right Reverend the Lord Bishop of D.;" forma "The Right Reverend Father in God, John, Divine Permission Lord Bishop of D." Wife a commoner. Bishop Suffragan, "Right Rever

OWAGER LADIES.—So long as the new Peer, ınet, &c., is unmarried these are styled prey as before widowhood, but as soon as a new nguished in some way, and they usually pret by the prefixing of their Christian names,

The Right Hon. Maria, Marchioness of A.," nily, Lady B.," and these forms are impera-when they are neither mother nor grand-ner of the existing Peer; otherwise we may ot the older forms, "The Right Hon. the ntess Dowager," "Her Grace the Duchess ager," or with a Baroness or Baronetess, e Dowager Lady" (there can of course be no agers in the case of Knights' widows, there g no hereditary succession). There appears e no settled practice as to whether the word owager" shall precede or follow the essential of honour. We venture to recommend it should follow when the name or title is not essed (as "the Duchess Dowager," "The y Dowager"), but precede when that title is n (as "The Dowager Duchess of A.," "The ager Countess [or "Lady"] B.").

hters of Dukes and other Peers see Note on 5. The prefix "Right Honourable" is ned by courtesy to younger sons and all ghters of Dukes and Marquesses, and to the ghters of Earls (i.e. to those taking the title rd" or "Lady"), but it is seldom used in of these cases.

DESCRIPTION OF TITLE-PAGE.

THERE is here latent or patent a considerable amount of illustration of the foregoing pa Turning first to the corners, we have at the upper left a representation of the Star of the Orde the Garter, at the right that of the Thistle, at the lower left that of St. Patrick, and at the lo right that of the Military Division of the G.C.B., exhibiting the correct form of a Maltese Cross clefts in which are, however, often somewhat deeper). Turning now to the oval design surround the letter-press, we need only remark of the series of coronets, &c., that "Nephews" correspond "Princes and Princesses of the Blood" on p. 16, and "Royal Dukes" to "Princes of the Bl Royal," while the "Cap of Dignity" was once a head-dress of Royalty and appears to have bee favourite with Henry the Seventh. The intermediate devices connected by chainwork are inten to show the forms of the Collars worn by the respective four Orders of Knighthood just described each of which belongs that quarter of the Collar lying nearest to its own figured Star. Thus p pendicularly under the Garter corner is a medal-garter depicting one of the twenty-six which worked into the actual Collar, and on each side of it, though interrupted by the coronets, is a t lover's knot as described p. 32. The adjacent upper quarter is devoted to the Thistle, and exhi the device of that symbol with the intervening sprigs of rue as they are found in the Collar of Order. Against the quarter of St. Patrick will be found the harp, rose, and knot, the series which three make up the St. Patrick Collar. Lastly, against the Bath corner we have the crown four arches (which we have ventured to call the Albert Crown from its having been the fo worn by the late Prince Consort), the device of rose, thistle, and shamrock, and the knot. entire chainwork, being double, may also be said to belong more particularly to this Order, as in Collar of the Garter it appears on the inner margin only, and in those of the other two Orders objects are attached together without chains. Surmounting the entire oval of the title-page are St. Edward's, Royal, or Imperial Crown, and the Sceptre Royal.

On the back of the volume the upper device exhibits the helmet and armed bust of a King, lower those of a Knight.

* The common form "Czarina" has no warrant in Russian. As to the cz or ts, the latter precisely represents the sound, and now that it is coming so largely into use it is certainly far preferable : indeed it seems inexplicable how the form "czar" could ever have come into English acceptance, since cz is not an English combination and it is found in Hungarian that it has the sound of ts. It may here be added in reference to "Fedorovna" that the termination -ma implies "daughter of" just as -vitch implies "son of," the "Fedor" (not "Feodor," which is the German form) being the regular Russian equivalent to "Friedrich," that name of the father having been preferred to the preceding "Ludwig," the corresponding form to which would have been "Ludovic." As to the use of v or w in transliterating from Russian characters, it seems sufficient to say that v is correct for English use and w only for German.

Note.—This total of 234, which is actually 242 when insertions marked a and b are counted, has to reduced by 24, the number of deceased individuals, and we then obtain 218 as the actual total living relatives, exclusive, except in the one closing instance, of connections by marriage alone, wh are in no single other case allotted a paragraph to themselves. This enumeration consequently om even the Princess of Wales, and if all those members of the Family who are thus brought in marriage or betrothal are included, an addition to the living total will be obtained of 60; and it n be added that the 218 comprise 11 married couples who are related to Her Majesty on both sid The list, though unprecedentedly long, has in no case wandered beyond the actual descendants eit of Her Majesty herself or of her first cousins, nephews, &c.

INDEX TO THE ROYAL FAMILY, &c.

 There is an obvious and unavoidable imperfection in the following index—which has never heretofore, to best of our knowledge, been attempted—consisting in the fact that the generality of royal personages possess e a long string of names (the English usually fewer than those of some other countries) from which it is of impossible to select with certainty the one or two which are conventionally used. The practice of the Co Circular has been diligently noted, but its aid cannot be very comprehensive, and for the bulk of the names have had to rely upon the high authority of the 'Almanach de Gotha' or its German original the 'Gothaischer l Kalender.' When, however, a name is found cited under some variation—say, Prince Adalbert of Prussia is terr "Prince Berengar"—the index may still be of service from the double form of its arrangement, for a referenc "Prussia" would in this instance conduct the searcher to the only possible houses under which the name could sta The employment of parentheses marks a junior member of a family: thus in this same instance we have to r "Prince Adalbert of Prussia" and not "Adalbert Prince of Prussia."

s to the anglicising of names it is difficult to be strictly consistent, but for the most part German names are s transmuted in the index even when given above under their originals only, whilst French names are allowed to in their native forms, and similarly it seems natural to speak of Prince "Carol" of Roumania, and of Kings arlos" and "Luiz" of Portugal. The form "Marie" is regular in French, but both "Marie" and "Maria" are onstant occurrence in German (for men as well as for women). The German "Luise" is precisely represented ound by our "Louisa," whilst "Louise" is the only form employed in French. There are several similar cases hich we can do nothing else than strictly follow our authority as above.

MARRIAGE ALLIANCES WITH FOREIGN HOUSES.

* The following list, which was originally prepared for WHITAKER'S ALMANACK but has been deemed more suited the present work, must be viewed as little more than a contribution to the wide subject which it opens. The ve Index has enabled us to make numerous additions to it in the form of references to the preceding table he Royal Family; the paragraphs in fuller form are thus all but restricted either to alliances which are mselves wholly past (reaching back to Henry VIII.) or to those whose basis of alliance is derived through some nber earlier than her present Majesty. Directing our attention to the former, we observe in the 1st and places two sons who became well known to us as Sovereigns, and in the second place Frederick D of York who died in 1820. In the 4th place comes a daughter, Charlotte Princess Royal, who m be carefully distinguished from the better-known Princess of that name, the only child of George and first consort of King Leopold I., whose death in childbirth (1817) caused such general reg Next in order comes the Duke of Kent, then two more daughters, the Princesses Augusta and El beth, then the Dukes of Cumberland, Sussex, and Cambridge, and lastly the Princesses Mary, Sop and Elizabeth, and the infant Princes Octavius and Alfred. To avoid overcrowding we have ha omit these five names from the table as well as those of the before-mentioned daughters.

Turning to the line of Saxe-Coburg, we note at its head H.S.H. Frederick Anthony, Reign Duke of Saxe-Coburg and Saalfeld from 1800 till his death in 1806. He was succeeded by his el son, Ernest Frederick Anthony, Duke Ernest I. of Saxe-Coburg and Gotha, this latter Principa having been acquired by a family compact, while Saalfeld was passed over to Saxe-Meiningen. Duke died in 1844 and was followed by the elder of his two sons, Ernest Augustus Charles, D Ernest II., the younger son being Albert, the late lamented Prince Consort. The second D Ernest died in 1893 and has as his present successor his nephew H.R.H. the Duke of Edinburgh.

Returning to Duke Francis, we note his two eldest daughters, who became respectively the Count of Mensdorff-Pouilly and Duchess Alexander of Würtemberg; then his 2nd son Duke Ferdina whose own eldest son became Regent of Portugal, while the 2nd married a Princess of the Bourb Orleans House and the daughter became Duchess of Nemours. Some of the descendants of th returned by marriage to Saxe-Coburg or passed to Saxony, Hohenzollern, Bavaria, or Austria, wh States, with the already noted Belgium, Würtemberg, Portugal, and France, and others that mi be added, including Baden, Hesse, Leiningen, Mecklenburg, Hanover, Tuscany, Naples, Gre Bulgaria, Roumania, Russia, and Denmark, make up considerably the larger portion of Europe the regions into which our present Royal Family has spread or from which its alliances have b drawn.

Duke Francis's 3rd and 7th children were two Princesses whose names are wholly omitted in table: the former, Princess Juliana, married the Grand Duke Constantine of Russia, but after twen four years the marriage was dissolved in 1820 and the Princess died without issue in 1860; the child, the Princess Marianne, died in childhood. The 8th and youngest was King Leopold I. alre mentioned, who, after the death of the Princess Charlotte, married the eldest daughter of King L Philippe, by whom he became father of his present Majesty, King Leopold II. We have reser for the last place Duke Francis's 6th child, the Princess Victoria Mary Louisa, mother of H Majesty Queen Victoria, but in the first place wife of Prince Emich Charles, who till his death in 1 was Reigning Prince of Leiningen, and whose two children, Prince Charles Emich his successor a Anne who became Princess of Hohenlohe-Langenburg and Countess Gleichen, were the pare (especially the latter) of the extensive lines of nephews and nieces of Her Majesty numbered 192- in our list of the Royal Family.

After the death of Prince Emich Charles the Princess Victoria married the Duke of Kent, and th only issue was our present Sovereign. By their marriage the Houses of Hanover and Saxe-Cob were again united after the unhappy severing of their former alliance by the death of Princ Charlotte; but the subsequent union of her present Majesty with Prince Albert, son of Duke Ern I., effected a second amalgamation from which, as remarked on p. 61, the two Houses have seemed become "practically identified."

ALPHABETICAL DIRECTORY

INCLUDING

ONS AND DAUGHTERS OF PEERS, DOWAGER LADIES, SCOTTISH, IRISH, COLONIAL, AND SUFFRAGAN BISHOPS, AND COMPANIONS OF THE ORDERS OF KNIGHTHOOD.

The arrangement followed is as strictly as possible alphabetical, and in the case of several persons of the same ne the rule is as follows: first those with titles of honour unfollowed by a Christian name (but a family name t any title takes precedence even of these), in the alphabetical arrangement—Baron, Bishop, Countess, ss, Duke, Earl, Hon. Lady, Lady, &c.; then follow those having a Christian name, succeeding each other by order of those names, the connecting titles, Captain, Hon., Lady, Lord, Reverend, Sir, &c., being printed ll letters and wholly ignored in the alphabetising. The list under every simple surname is exhausted before npounds of that name are commenced, and an arrangement is adopted which brings all the names of the ompound together. Compound names connected by a hyphen are placed under the second or last name, some other is the only one in use; but titles (including such forms as "Egerton of Tatton" and "Willoughby sby") are placed under the first name, and those commencing with St., De, &c., stand under the respective s, whilst M' is treated as if spelt Mac. See the Prelim. List under "Campbell."

As much confusion prevails respecting the correct ng of the above name we submit the following as esult of a somewhat painstaking investigation. The Peer bore the patronymic Smith, and was under name created Bn. Carrington in the Irish Peerage 6, and in that of Gt. Britain (same title) in the year ring. In 1839 his successor adopted by licence the y name Carington, spelt with a single r, and then ually enough the orthography of the title came to be ded as the same (in fact, the error was made both , until in 1880 the present Peer made a stand for the al rr: it was thus the title that was in that year d to Carrington and not the patronymic to Caring- the 'Peerages' have been misled into concluding, nough, by the latter being left as it was when the was altered, it may be said to have been then infe- ally confirmed, we are able to assert most positively he same spelling with one r had been, for the name st, the decidedly predominating form during the of the seventies. Finally, with a view to producing stency in future generations, though at the cost of reater perplexity in the immediate present, in 1892 r was adopted in the family name also by Earl ington for himself and his descendants, whilst his ers continue the use of the single letter.

 The orthography of the above title appears to have varied in the past, so that we have adopted the form which seems to be the ruling present usage as given consistently by so high an Irish authority as 'Thom's Official Directory,' supported by 'Foster,' and (except as to making the name a compound, "Castle-Stuart") by 'Lodge,' 'Debrett,' and the smaller 'Peerages.' 'Burke,' however, gives "Castle-Stewart," and so, in its list of 'Predecessors,' does 'Debrett.' In our own ALMANACK we support this as the older form under "Historic Peerage" for dates 1619, 1793, and 1800, but give the modern form in our list of Irish Peers.

 The statement that this Earldom is a "new creation of 1895" is an obvious mistake. It is true that according to Scottish law it would have descended in 1893 to the elder of the two daughters, but wrong that "being an English patent it became extinct." It was an ordinary case of abeyance, and the Gazette notice of March 5, 1895, ordains "Sibell Lilian Mackenzie, elder of the daughters of the late E. of Cromartie, to hold the full honours, which descend to her heirs." Her grandmother, the 1st Ctss., married the 3rd D. of Sutherland, so that the fam. name till quite recently was Sutherland-Leveson-Gower; but the former name, Mackenzie, has been restored, the late Christian name, in fact, becoming the surname.

Note on the prefix DE.—In all designations of the English Peerage or of English Orders this term is treated as an essential part of the name or title, though these are usually foreign in appearance. In the list that follows, however, there are many names or titles which are foreign altogether, and are only permitted by royal licence to be recognised in this country. In the case of these we have hesitated as to entering the names under the prefix, for this often seems on its very face like entering an English title under the word "Of." But on practical considerations—bearing in mind that this work is likely often to be consulted in a hurry, and especially that there are numbers of titles as to which the average searcher will not know in advance whether they are English or not—it has been thought better to place all such names under the "De," only making this general admission of the want of science in such procedure. Names in Von and Van are treated the same, but not those in the Italian Di. References to the prefix will be given whenever it appears that a name would reasonably be looked for elsewhere. It may be worth adding that our rule as to capitalising follows the lines which would have been theoretically better for the preceding purpose, the De taking a capital only when commencing a surname or title admittedly English.

DILLON, family name of CLONBROCK Barony, also, in one instance, of DILLON Viscounty, in which in one other instance it is varied to Lee-Dillon, and in the family generally to Dillon-Lee. The three will here be indexed together on ac- count of a confusion as to the actual name of the latter house, which is given in 'Burke' and 'Lodge' as Lee-Dillon. We are able to state authoritatively that though this inversion has in reality been adopted by Lord Dillon's only son, and though the name Lee has been largely discarded in conventional use, yet for some 150 years the regular family name has been Dillon-Lee, assumed originally by Hon. Chas. Dillon, aftds. 12th V., on inheriting the estates of his maternal uncle the 3rd E. of Lichfield (extinct line bearing the patronymic Lee). Those names in the Index that are marked L will be found entered under "Lee, Dillon-." (All the names are "Honourables.")

Note on Names commencing with Ff.—It has been customary with some among the few holders of these names to write them wholly in small letters—a practice against which we venture respectfully though emphatically to enter a protest. It is one of the best-known rules of the English language that every proper name shall commence with a capital letter, and we submit that not even the traditional habit of ancient families has any power to override this law. It would be about as reasonable for some other family to start spelling their names backwards (with the capital at the end) or with the letters upside down ! If journalists and the press would only set themselves against it the oddity would soon die out, for it would come to be felt that not only is it the infliction of an eyesore upon the public but it is really a degrading of the families who by thus writing themselves down distort their names into forms which by the law of our language cannot be names at all.

 The two Earldoms, "Mar" and "Mar and Kellie," have much intricacy in their history. The origin of the Earldom of Mar is stated to have been "lost in antiquity." In the 15th century the line became involved in dispute, but in 1565 after an investigation the title was confirmed to its claimant, but with conditions so altered that the House of Lords in 1875 pronounced it to have been a new creation. The succession, however, had continued as before, and in 1834 the Earldom of Kellie became united with it; but on the death of the 25th E. without issue in 1866 this latter title went to the next male heir, while the orig. Earldom of Mar followed female succession to the present E. of Mar. Finally, on the conclusion of the investigation by the House of Lords it was decided in 1885 that the Mar Earldom of 1565 must also pass to the inheritor on the male side, while the earlier Earldom remained as the distinct Peerage of Mar. Thus the line which for a time had held the double title took now the single one, and vice versa ("Kellie" had crossed over).

, The above two Baronetcies were created the one in the name of Scott and the other of Bateman, but the latter was made open to succession of male descendants of the 1st Bart.'s daughters.  Some information beyond our ordinary lines may be acceptable to many, though it may be well to guard ourselves from thereby implying that Tennyson was more than one of the great poets of the century—Byron, as to whom we do not thus specially enlarge, being in our opinion the unassailable possessor of the highest throne. Ralph Tennyson, Esq., who died in 1735, was a prominent supporter of King William III. His son Michael settled at Preston in Yorkshire and Stainton in Lincolnshire, and married Elizabeth Clayton of Grimsby, whose family was connected with the Earldom of Scarsdale and the Barony of D'Eyncourt (the latter extinct but the former revived; it is singular that the family of Byron was also connected with this Earldom—see "Lovelace"). Their son George Tennyson, Esq., of Bayons Manor and Usselby House, both in Lincolnshire, was grandfather of the Poet, and had, besides daughters, two sons who became respectively the Rev. Geo. Clayton Tennyson, LL.D., and the Rt. Hon. Chas. Tennyson-d'Eyncourt, F.R.S., M.P. The former settled down as Rector of Somersby, a minute village in the fen district not far from Horncastle and Spilsby (not to be confused with Somerby, the name of three villages in either Lincolnshire or Leicestershire). He married Elizabeth, daughter of Rev. Stephen Fytche, and had by her the following family:

Religious Tract Society,

INSTITUTED 1799.

For Publishing Religious Tracts and Books at Home and Abroad.

THE SOCIETY'S MISSIONARY WORK

Is carried on in TWO HUNDRED and FIFTEEN Languages and Dialects.

HELP is given to the Church Missionary Society, London Missionary Society, Society for the Propagation of the Gospel in Foreign Parts, Baptist Missionary Society, Wesleyan Missionary Society, China Inland Mission, the Presbyterian Missionary Societies, Paris Evangelical Missions, Gossner Missionary Society, Basle Missionary Society, American Board of Commissioners for Foreign Missions, Rhenish Missionary Society, and numerous others.

MISSION PRESSES.—Every year the whole Foreign Mission Field receives help in various ways, and Missionaries of all Evangelical Churches testify that their usefulness is largely dependent upon the activity of the Printing Presses, which are entirely, or in great part, sustained by the grants from the Society's funds.

CONTINENTAL WORK.—On the Continent of Europe a large sum is spent every year in France, Belgium, Switzerland, Italy, Spain, Portugal, Germany, Sweden, Norway, Austria, Russia, Greece, and Turkey, in aid of the production and distribution of a Protestant Evangelical Literature.

WHAT THE SOCIETY DOES AT HOME.—At Home during the current year, Libraries have been granted at greatly reduced prices, and in some cases entirely free, to 181 Districts, Parishes, and Congregations; 289 Sunday and Day Schools; 50 Hospitals, Union Houses, Prisons and Asylums; 5 Soldiers' and Sailors' Institutions; 8 Ministers on Ordination, Evangelists, and to Colporteurs, £10 Library Grants on payment of £3 15*s.*; 23 Colleges and Teachers—grants at half-price; 15 Young Men's and Young Women's Christian Associations; 670 Institutions of various kinds at Christmas time.

Tract Circulation, chiefly in Great Britain, has amounted during the year to over 18,000,000 Copies. A very large number of these have been granted free, and the remainder at half Subscriber's price—i.e., 20*s.* worth for 7*s.* 6*d.*

MISSIONARY FUNDS.—The total amount received from subscriptions and other contributions, part payments for grants, dividends, and legacies, is £21,463 3*s.* 2*d.*, the whole of this sum being available for the missionary objects of the Society. The missionary expenditure has amounted to £32,561 19*s.* 1*d.*

HOW THE FUNDS ARE USED.—All Contributions are devoted to the Missionary Work of the Society without any deduction whatever, the whole cost of management and administration being charged upon the Trade Funds.

FORM OF BEQUEST TO THE SOCIETY.

I give and bequeath unto the Treasurer for the time being of the RELIGIOUS TRACT SOCIETY, instituted in London in the year 1799, the sum of Pounds sterling: and a receipt of such Treasurer for the time being of the said Society shall be a sufficient discharge for the said Legacy.

If a Testator wish the Legacy to be paid free of duty, he will add the following words to the above form: and I direct that the Legacy Duty upon the said Legacy be paid by my executors.

Subscriptions may be sent to the Secretaries, Rev. Prebendary LEWIS BORRETT WHITE, D.D., and Rev. S. G. GREEN, D.D., 56, Paternoster Row, London, E.C. Cheques should be crossed, and made payable in the name of Mr. FREDK. GEO. SARGENT, Cashier.

Clergymen who can arrange for an offertory on behalf of the Society are requested to communicate with the Rev. Prebendary WHITE, at the Chief Office, 56, Paternoster Row, London, E.C.

THE ROYAL WESTMINSTER OPHTHALMIC HOSPITAL.

KING WILLIAM STREET, WEST STRAND, W.C.

FOUNDED IN 1816.

ENTIRELY SUPPORTED BY VOLUNTARY CONTRIBUTIONS.

Patrons:—HER MOST GRACIOUS MAJESTY THE QUEEN.
H.R.H. THE PRINCE OF WALES, K.G.
President.—H.R.H. THE DUKE OF CAMBRIDGE, K.G.
Chairman.—SIR CHARLES TURNER, K.C.I.E.
Treasurers.—GEORGE COWELL, Esq., F.R.C.S.; AND H. LINDSAY ANTROBUS, Esq.

This Hospital receives the Indigent Poor on their own application without Letters of Recommendation, and was the first to adopt this practice of giving the instantaneous relief so necessary in Eye Diseases and Accidents. Over 11,000 Poor Persons are relieved Annually. There are 30 beds available for In-patients constantly occupied.

The present building is wholly inadequate to the daily increasing demand for relief for both Out and In-patients. A larger hospital on a new site is imperative, and £50,000 is required for this purpose.

The Committee urgently Appeal for New Annual Subscriptions for maintenance purposes, and they earnestly plead with the Benevolent to enable them to build the much-needed New Hospital.

Subscriptions and Donations should be sent to the Bankers, Messrs. COUTTS & Co., Strand; or to—

T. BEATTIE-CAMPBELL, Secretary.

LEGACIES ARE ALSO ESPECIALLY SOLICITED. [5

EARNEST APPEAL FOR HELP

The Hospital is now free from debt, and the Committee Appeal Most Earnestly for Contributions to enable them to carry on the work without having to spend part of the contributions in interest on loans.

Patron—HER MAJESTY THE QUEEN.
Vice-Patrons—H.R.H. The PRINCESS OF WALES; H.R.H. THE DUCHESS OF YORK.
President—THE VISCOUNT PORTMAN. Treasurer—ALFRED C. DE ROTHSCHILD, Esq.

OBJECTS OF THE CHARITY.

1. To provide an Asylum for the delivery of Poor Married Women; and also of Deserving Unmarried Women with their first child.
2. To provide skilled Midwives to attend Poor Married Women in their Confinements at their own homes.
3. The Training of Medical Pupils, Midwives for the Poor, and Monthly Nurses.

Since the foundation of the Hospital 100,000 poor women have been relieved. Last year, 1,151 patients were received into the Hospital, and 1,122 were attended at their own homes.

Annual expenditure of the Charity exceeds £4,500; Reliable Income, £1,800 only.

An Annual Subscription of £3 3s., or a donation of £31 10s., entitles the Contributor to recommend Two In-Patients and Three Out-Patients yearly, and qualifies for election as a Governor.

Contributions will be gratefully received by the Bankers, Messrs. COCKS, BIDDULPH & CO., 43, Charing Cross, S.W., or by ARTHUR WATTS, Secretary. [33

ST. MARY'S HOSPITAL,

PADDINGTON, W.

Patron—HER MAJESTY THE QUEEN.
President—H.R.H. THE DUKE OF YORK, K.G.

DEPENDENT ON VOLUNTARY CONTRIBUTIONS.

THIS HOSPITAL is the only General Hospital in the District in which it stands, in addition to which it is a combination of Special Hospitals. All the most serious forms of illness (except infectious diseases) are treated within its walls, and it is the LARGEST CHILDREN'S HOSPITAL in this part of London.

42,078 Patients were relieved during the past year (1896), of whom 3,711 were In-patients. Although the strictest economy, consistent with a high standard of efficiency, is observed, the maintenance of the Institution costs about £21,000 a year. Its reliable income, including Annual Subscriptions, is less than £10,000. For the remaining £11,000 it is entirely dependent upon the charitable Contributions of the Public.

During the last Four Years the Income from Legacies has greatly fallen off, and as a consequence the Charity has had to sell part of its very Small Capital to provide for Current Expenses.

An earnest appeal for aid is therefore made to all those who sympathise with the work of ministering to the sufferings of the Sick Poor, and have it in their power to further it.

Contributions, especially Annual Subscriptions, will be thankfully received by the Bankers, THE LONDON AND COUNTY BANKING CO., 1, Connaught Place, W., or by the Secretary at the Hospital.

Annual Subscribers of Three Guineas, or Donors of Thirty Guineas, may recommend Three In-patients and Eighteen Out-patients annually, and are eligible for election as Annual or Life Governors respectively. Subscribers of greater or smaller sums are entitled to recommend Patients in proportion to the amount of their Subscription.

SONS OF THE CLERGY CORPORATION.

President—THE ARCHBISHOP OF CANTERBURY.

SINCE its foundation in 1655 the Corporation of the Sons of the Clergy has been unceasingly engaged in assisting the Clergy, their Widows and Children, of every Diocese of England and Wales.

The Governors now help annually about 750 Clergymen and Clergy Children by grants of money, and over 1,000 Clergy Widows and aged Maiden Daughters by Pensions and Grants.

As every Diocese receives help from this parent Society proportionate to its needs, in augmentation of what it derives from local and diocesan funds, contributions are earnestly invited both from the Clergy and the Laity, on the special ground that from their wide knowledge of the needs of the poorer Clergy and their families, the Governors are able to distribute their funds in the quarters where they are most urgently required.

Donors of Thirty Guineas are elected Governors of the Corporation.

Annual Subscribers are warmly welcomed, and the Clergy are asked to send up Church Collections.
